ADMIRAL STRAUSS HERE ON FIRST OFFICIAL VISIT

New Commander Of American Asiatic Fleet Arrives On Flagship Huron

KERNAN IS ALSO VISITOR

Commander Of Department Of Philippines Comes With Naval Chief

Admiral Joseph Strauss, the new Commander-in-Chief of the American Asiastic Fleet arrived in port on his flagship Huron yesterday afternoon. The Huron came up the Whangpoo and tied up to buoys at five o'clock just off the Tiendong road jetty. It is the first official call of the Admiral since he relieved Admiral Albert Gleaves at Manila.

Brig.-Gen. F. J. Kernan, Commander of the Department of the Philippines, accompanied Admiral Strauss on the voyage from Manila.

The Huron was a busy boat on its arrival. The crew were all on duty on deck cleaning up for their month's stay in Shanghai, and the Admiral was occupied receiving official calls from commanding officers of boats of other nations in the harbor.

It is understood that Admiral

Strauss, while in Shanghai, will take up quarters at one of the local hotels, perhaps the Palace. Mrs. Strauss will arrive Sunday on the Suwa Maru.

Admiral Strauss was awarded the distinguished service medal during the Great War for laying the Allies' mine barrage in the North Sea. He came to the Far East direct from Washington where he had been stationed on Naval work since October 1919, on the completion of the work of removing the mine barrage in European waters, a task which he supervised.

Interviewers of Admiral Strauss at Manila have noted him as favoring the "naval holiday" or halt in increasing of naval strengths which has attracted so much discussion throughout the world. He believes the "holiday" would be a good thing if it could be satisfactorily worked out to a practical basis by the Powers it would concern.

Admiral Strauss is the author of several articles on ordnance and ballistics. He was a member of the commission which finally decided the cause of sinking the Maine in Havana harbor. In 1912 he was appointed a vice-admiral and made chief of the bureau of ordnance. He invented a superposed turret system of mounting guns on battleships and has done much experimental work in torpedoes.

The destroyer fleet, which formerly was scheduled to arrive in Shanghai with the flagship, is still at Manila, going through spring target and torpedo practice. It is expected to arrive in port within the next few weeks and later proceed with the Admiral to Chefoo for the summer manoeuvers and practices.

Shanghai Merchant May Be Envoy To Commercial Parley

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, May 12.—It is reported that the Ministry of Commerce, not being in favor of the appointment of Mr. Liu Chang-min as Delegate to the forthcoming International Commercial Conference in Paris, has recommended Mr. Lin Tao-yuan, a well-known Shanghai merchant.

McNAMARA RELEASED

(U. S. Navy Radio through Reuter)

San Quentin, Cal., May 11.—John J. McNamara has been released from jail after having served nine years and five months on a charge of dynamiting the Llewellyn ironworks at Los Angeles in 1910.

Ireland's New Viceroy

LORD Edmund Talbot, first Viceroy of Ireland under the new Home Rule Act. Lord Talbot is the first Roman Catholic to be appointed Lord Lieutenant of Ireland. He is the foremost lay Catholic in England. The Irish leaders regard the new Viceroy as a "dummy" of Premier Lloyd George and do not expect any change in the Government's policy toward Ireland. Lord Talbot is the uncle and heir presumptive of the present Duke of Norfolk.

SHIP ENGINEERS IN U.S. TO OFFER NEW PEACE PLAN

Union Representatives Will Submit "Counter Proposals" To Secretary Davis

New York, May 12.—The marine engineers, while rejecting two points in the draft terms of settlement drawn up by the Department of Labor, have by resolution empowered their executive committee to negotiate a settlement if possible. The committee said they would return to Washington with counter-proposals.

Washington, May 11.—The representatives of the marine workers have left Washington as the result of an announcement by Secretary of Labor Davis that his efforts to arrange a settlement of the wage dispute have been unavailing, and no further conferences will be held for the time being.

(U. S. Navy Radio through Reuter)

Baltimore, May 12.—Three hundred men, alleged to be marine strikers and their sympathisers, stormed the doors of the Customs House in an effort to reach a party of negro strike-breakers, who fled to the Federal Building for protection. Several of the negroes were severely beaten before the arrival of police protection.

Tenants Wanted For Two Lovely Furnished Rooms

Rumors current about the city that Shanghai people are shrieking for living quarters and boarding houses are crowded and hotels impossible were vigorously denied yesterday by a United States official who gloomily pointed to two beautiful large chambers with every modern convenience—wholly habitable but disconsolately vacant.

These are outside rooms, steam heated, with running hot and cold water, attendance every hour of the day and night and three excellent meals are served during the course of the day and evening. Because of their proximity to the waterfront, there are no mosquitoes and in summer a consistent breeze is assured from the w.k. Whangpoo.

And what is more the rooms will be let free to properly qualified individuals. All a man has to do is to caress another with a baseball bat, extract a few hundred of our Mexican currency units from a bank when the cashier is out for a shave, or just shoot a ricsha coolie.

For the rooms are at the American Jail and they were vacant yesterday on Friday the Thirteenth—for the first time in two years. And Jailer Charles Ludwig is pacing the floor, desolate.

SOVIET PACT WITH BRITAIN APPROVED BY HIGH COURT

Russians Win In Case Started To Test Legality

OLD DEBTS VOID

Imported Russian Goods Exempt From Seizure, Ruling

(Reuter's Service)

London, May 12.—The question of the liability of attachment in regard to goods exported by the Russian Soviet Government was settled in the Court of Appeal today, which reversed the judgment of Justice Roche, restraining further dealings in timber confiscated from the original owners, namely, a Russian, firm, who were the plaintiffs, and exported by the Soviets through M. Krassin to a British firm, who were the defendants.

Mr. Justice Roche granted the plaintiffs' claim for an injunction against further dealings and damages for conversion, on the ground that the Soviet Government was not recognised by the British Government.

Today's judgment in the Court of Appeal held that the Court had no jurisdiction to consider the justice or morality of the Bolshevik decree of confiscation in view of Great Britain's subsequent recognition of the Soviet Government. It accordingly allowed the appeal of the defendants against Mr. Justice Roche's judgment.

(Note: M. Krassin, in the course of an interview in London in March, expressed the hope that the above test case, as well as others, would be decided shortly, as, pending the decisions of the English courts, all Russian contracts with British firms, including even the big contract with Messrs. Armstrong, Whitworth for the repair of Russian locomotives, would be delayed, owing to the risk of attach.

GERMAN BANK INQUIRY OFFICE OPENED HERE

Reopening Of Institution Contingent Upon Berlin, Says Representative

To handle inquiries regarding the Deutsch Asiatische Bank, closed with other German establishments following China's entry into the war, an office has been opened at 51 Kiangse Road by Mr. G. Rust, representative of the Bank.

The opening of the office, Mr. Rust said, was due to the great number of inquiries which are being received by the bank's former clients. Reopening of the institution, he stated, is not only contingent upon the signing of the commercial treaty between China and Germany, but also upon the decision of the Berlin board of directors, which has as yet not definitely expressed its opinion in the matter. The inquiries being received here are transmitted to Berlin.

N. Y. CROWD HOSTILE TO BRITISH RAIL UNION CHIEF

J. H. Thomas Hooted By Sympathisers Of Striking Miners

"BETRAYAL," CRY

Belgian Dock Workers Refuse To Handle Coal For England

(Reuter's Service)

New York, May 12.—M. J. H. Thomas, M.P., the British railwaymen's leader, met with a hostile reception on landing here. A crowd of Irish-American laborites at the pier jeered, and they carried banners inscribed with references to Judas, and asserting that Mr. Thomas had betrayed the miners. The police were called out, but their services were not required, Mr. Thomas escaping in a taxi-cab.

Brussels, May 12.—The Secretary of the Antwerp Dockers' Union has informed the executives of the Transport-workers' Federation and the Railwaymen's Union that the Antwerp dockers will refuse to load coal for export to Great Britain. He also requests Belgian railwaymen to help the dockers to prevent coal from reaching England.

London, May 12.—There has been a grave development of the coal situation owing to the executive of the Locomotive Engineers' and Firemen's Union instructing its members not to work trains carrying "blackleg" coal. It adds that if any members are penalised for refusal the executive will support them to the outmost, if necessary by a strike.

London, May 13.—The Glasgow and West of Scotland branch of the railwaymen's union has decided the reinstatement of the suspended men who refused to handle imported coal. The decision was taken without the sanction of the Railwaymen's Union's executive.

U.S. Protest In Oil Dispute "Too Late"

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, May 12.—The State Department has received a summary of the Dutch reply to the American protest against the awarding of the Djambi oil-field monopoly to the Batavia Oil Company.

It is understood the reply contends that the protest was lodged too late, as the Dutch Parliament has already passed legislation dealing with the matter.

American officials are stated to be considering the despatch of a further communication.

Profiteers Face Investigation In U.S.

(U. S. Navy Radio through Reuter)

Washington, May 11.—President Harding has asked Mr. Harry K. Daugherty, the Attorney General to investigate the charges of profiteering in connection with contracts for purchases by the War Department during the war. A special inquiry will probably begin soon.

MRS. HELEN R. MASCHER

Who Supplies Sandwiches To Drug Store Soda Fountains In New York City And Earns More Than $50,000 A Year

A fortune built up from sixty sand-wiches is the strange but true story of the business success of Mrs. Helen R. Mascher, of New York City. Several years ago she conceived the idea of supplying dainty sandwiches for drug store soda fountains. Her first order was for sixty sandwiches. The orders quickly grew until today she is at the head of a large business employing several hundred people and supplying sandwiches wrapped in wax paper to keep them fresh to soda water fountains all over America. She earns over $50,000 a year from her business.

Distinguished Americans Of A Half Century Ago

THIS rare old photograph was recently found in Virginia City, Nev. It shows General U. S. Grant and members of his party on a visit to the Consolidated mines in Virginia City on October 7, 1879. The men in the photo were among the most distinguished Americans of their day. Left to right: John W. Mackay, promoter of the Mackay-Bennett cable, and one of California's early millionaires; Mrs. D. Gillette, U. S. Grant, Jr., Mrs. U. S. Grant, General Grant, Mrs. James G. Fair, Governor J. H. Kinkead, of Nevada, and James G. Fair. Mr. and Mrs. Fair were the parents of Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt and Mrs. Hermann Oelrichs. John W. Mackay was the father of Clarence H. Mackay, at the present time head of the Postal Telegraph Company.

Harvard Museum Agent Seeks Specimens In China

BY ELSIE McCORMICK

Paging the muntjac through the lobby of Fukien Province is one of the tasks which Mr. Frederick Wulsin has nominated himself to accomplish during a year's vacation in China. Mr. Wulsin, who, with Mrs. Wulsin, is at present staying at the Astor House, hopes to enrich the Harvard Museum of Comparative Zoology by the addition of many Chinese specimens with unpronounceable names and unlovable dispositions.

Being a zoologist only by avocation, Mr. Wulsin intends to combine collecting tour of pleasure jaunt with lots of stop-overs in the provinces and no bows of scientific red tape on his luggage. After a short stay in Peking, the Wulsins will strike out into the tall grass of China's yokel districts, planning their itinerary as they go and proving that a real picnic does not necessarily expire at the end of a day.

The interior of China is a vast zoological museum, for the most part unlabelled and uncathalogued. Westerners have a prevailing and erroneous notion that a country so universally cultivated is a poor haven for animal life. A little travel reveals unsettled mountain regions, miles of unkempt plains, and wildernesses of bamboo that stretch over hill slopes and ravines in a vast green monotony.

MUCH BIG GAME

In such country, big game of many varieties are waiting for the collector with sufficient disregard for spring mattresses, ice-cream, electric fans, and other comforts of civilisation to go after them. There is the serow, for instance, a creature which seems to be half goat and half antelope, combining the head antillery of the former with the speed of the latter. The serow is famous for a facial expression suggesting news of a fall in exchange and for a heavy conformation of its limbs that would bar it from the front line of the chorus. It is as elusive as a ricsha coolie with a forgotten fur in his vehicle, thus furnishing rare sport for the huntsman who enjoys the stalking as much as the capture. Serows have been found in India, Sumatra, Japan and the Malay Peninsula as well as in China, but in none of these places are they inclined to be chummy. The man who shoots one proves that he has both a good eye and an unusual fund of patience and endurance.

In Fukien Province there is the playful muntjac, a misses' size deer not much larger than a fox, but endowed with a wicked tusk on each side of the upper jaw. In Korea and Manchuria, as well as in many parts of China proper, one finds the goral, another variant of the deer family with a special reputation for making trouble for anyone who interferes with its innocent round of pleasures. The goral is smaller than the serow, but is equipped to furnish the hunter with quite as lively a party.

If one's fancy lightly turns to monkeys, there are varieties enough to satisfy all preferences. Our Yunnan province, where China's mountain tops look down on Burma to the South and up to the great ranges of Thibet on the North, Mr. Roy Chapman Andrews made himself acquainted with the langur, a long-tailed ape that is gray in adult life and bright orange red in youth. Here also live the gibbons, which is not the name of a foreign family but the designation of long-armed, tailless apes which, though awkward on the ground, are more nimble in the tree-tops than small boys stealing cherries.

HOME OF BLUE TIGERS

China is also the only place where one can find blue tigers outside of the psychopathic wards. They slink through the bamboo groves of Shansi, making excursions into villages and reducing the task of the census-taker. Very few specimens have ever been secured, though many well-known naturalists have spent weary weeks in an effort to track them. Over on the Thibetan borderland, the snow leopard prowls across the high passes, the silver pheasant spreads a white mantle like a wedding veil, and the sambur, large as the American elk, does sentry duty on the mountain sides.

Mr. Wulsin hardly expects to bag samples of all these varieties, but he looks forward to interviews with some of them and he hopes, most of all, to discover some specimens new to the scientific world of the West.

"A zoologist's work is largely a matter of luck," Mr. Wulsin said. "I once spent months in Madagascar and British East Africa collecting specimens, and when I returned, I found that the only new varieties I had were some lizards I had captured in a hotel bedroom."

We assured Mr. Wulsin that a short time spent in a Chinese inn would enrich the Harvard Museum in many unexpected directions.

China's Envoy At Moscow Asks Funds

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, May 12.—Mr. Chen Kuang-pin, China's unofficial representative at Moscow, is appealing for funds. As it is practically impossible to make a direct remittance, the Government propose to send him funds through the Russian representative in London.

U.S. Labor Opposed To Russian Soviet

U. S. Navy Radio through Reuter)

Cincinnati, May 11.—The Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor is preparing information and data for submission to the annual convention in an endeavor to show that organised labor in the United States cannot afford to support any movement to recognise the Russian Soviet Government.

LAUNDRYMEN TO VOTE TOMORROW ON STRIKE ISSUE

Organisation To Be Effected At Meeting In Frenchtown

A strike vote among the laundrymen in Shanghai has been called for tomorrow in order these men may organise and demand higher wages. Circulars urging the strike appeared yesterday. The names of Shao Lien-sung, Hso Shan-yu and Fan Fu appeared at the bottom of the circular.

Every laundryman is asked to subscribe the sum of $1.20 toward the organisation, which will have headquarters at 9 Ai Jeng Li, Avenue Foch, where a general meeting to ina gonation is called for Sunday.

It is estimated that there are over 300 laundrymen in Shanghai and their average daily wages for the present is 30 coppers, with food and lodging.

New Congressman Commits Suicide

(U. S. Navy Radio through Reuter)

Battlecreek, Mich., May 11.—Mr. W. H. Frankhauser, one of the newly-elected Republican members of Congress for Michigan, has committed suicide by cutting his throat in a bath at a local sanitorium. He had recently been despondent owing to sickness.

Communist Chief Jailed In Britain

London, May 12.—Robert Stewart, described as the general organiser of the Communist party in Britain, has been sentenced to three months' hard labor at Abercynon Police-court for uttering seditious speeches in Wales.

INSURGENT POLISH CHIEF ORDERS HALT IN FIGHTING

Korfanty Heeds Allied Plea, But Authority Is Dubious

FRENCH ALARMED

Paris Hears Uniformed Germans Are Engaged In Border Warfare

(Reuter's Service)

London, May 12. According to telegrams received from London, Korfanty, the insurgent leader, has ordered the cessation of fighting in Silesia, but it is doubtful whether the insurgents will carry out his instructions. Meanwhile the German forces, some of whom are uniformed, are increasing.

Telegrams from Paris refer to a sanguinary collision between German and Polish irregulars.

In the House of Commons, Mr. Lloyd George stated today that no British troops were involved.

An elucidation of the Premier's statement in the House of Commons this afternoon is gathered from a message from Reuter's Berlin correspondent, who learns from a trustworthy source that, despite the continued operation of the Reparations Recovery Act, Great Britain does not intend, in respect of reparation, to collect more than the 26 percent prescribed in the ultimatum.

London, May 12.—In the House of Commons today at question-time, the Premier intimated that the Reparations Recovery Act would remain in force, despite the German acceptance of the Allied proposals for the payment of indemnities.

British Emigration Figures Show Decline

(Reuter's Service)

London, May 12.—The large falling off in emigration to various parts of the Empire for the past seven years as a consequence of the war was revealed in the reply of Colonel Amery in the House of Commons today to Colonel Hilder (Essex, South-East div.), who suggested that prior to the assembling of the Imperial Conference the Government should prepare a comprehensive statement showing the recent emigration position.

Colonel Amery, in undertaking to bear the suggestion in mind, said that the outflow to the Empire for the whole four years from 1915 to 1918 totalled 87,487 as compared with 285,046 in 1913. The figures for 1919 were 115,369 and last year 198,593.

BRITISH BANKERS PROTEST AGAINST PROPOSED TARIFF

Manifesto Declares Restriction On Imports Will Hurt Trade

(Reuter's Service)

London, May 13.—A manifesto, signed by 25 of the most prominent British bankers, urges the liberation of trade from political restrictions, and declares it is essential that no measures be taken which would check the free exchange of British goods.

It considers that the present national expenditure is ruinous, and contends that the limitation of imports means limitation of our exports.

"Trade is exchange," it declares, and it is only by exports that foreign nations can re-establish their credit and provide funds for the payment of their debts.

Control that hampers imports will only retard the improvement of Continental exchanges and prevent the natural recovery of trade. Restrictive legislation would bestow a limited benefit to the detriment of a larger output and thus increase the difficulty for British traders to compete successfully in world markets.

Mixed Court Jottings

Count Toulouse Lautrec de Savine, who admits that he once narrowly escaped being king of Bulgaria, but who has been languishing in the Municipal jail for over a year because of a forgery conviction, is shortly to leave Shanghai. The Count, who before drawing an eighteen months' internment on this item graced the local Bastille for a shorter period on account of having worn a high Russian officer's uniform and decorations about the streets without having qualified for them, was before the Mixed Court yesterday and was ordered reported to Vladivostok and permission to return here was denied him. He is to be held in custody until the boat sails.

Burto Michay, Rumanian arrested in the International Bank last week while attempting to pick a pocket, was sentenced to two months' imprisonment yesterday.

A Chinese arrested at the Chinwangtao jetty in possession of eighteen pounds of opium yesterday will appear before the Mixed Court this morning.

A raid on a gambling establishment at 276 North Szechuen Road Thursday night netted 23 arrests. Fifteen of the gamblers were fined $5 each yesterday, one was fined $10 and seven who failed to appear forfeited bail of $10 each.

The Chinese passenger who was taken off the Empress of Russia, here last February when found to be mentally deranged was ordered turned over to his father, who appeared in Court yesterday, for return to Canton.

The Waring Company

There is always lots of good wholesome breathless adventure, bright eyed love and fun in Anthony Hope's books, and in Mr. H. B. Waring's charming production last evening at the Lyceum Theater of "The Adventures of Lady Ursula" we were spirited into that glittering land of fair women and gallant men, of flickering swords and bumper toasts (the brand was Moet and Chandon, I perceived, the real stuff too—there is none of your "Property Pop" about the Waring Management—and the Company played all the better for it!) brocaded coats, wigs, lace 'kerchiefs and the whole jolly paraphernalia of romantic, exciting Anthony Hope-dum.

It was a "first night" performance, as the Company have been at work rehearsing "Lady Ursula" since their arrival in Shanghai, and the hearty rounds of applause with which the audience greeted their efforts must indeed have proved gratifying to everyone associated with such a breathless first night.

There were four acts in which everyone except The Reverend Mr. Blimbo seemed intent either on fighting a duel or of assisting someone else in fighting or getting out of fighting a duel of some sort.

Lady Ursula played by Miss Jeannette Sherwin was no end of a girl, and, when wearing brother's breeks no end of a jolly young dog.

Mr. Christian Morrow as Mr. Blimbo, The Reverend of that ilk, was most amusing and kept the audience in titters of laughter when on the stage.

Mr. Quartermaine played Sir George Sylvester and looked most courtly and gallant.

How he managed such a quick change of clothes in about three minutes in the course of the second Act he himself only knows. Actors earn their money in the Far East. 'Tis a strenuous life!

Act III where "the lads of the village" are seated round a real table drinking real "Bubbly" in a real way as if they really liked it, reminded me of a Saturday night at the . . . . (it's not for me to say where!) and that sound actor Mr. Wordley Hulse as Mr. Castleton, the level headed guards officer, did very well. Mr. Frederick Annerley as Mr. Dent made everyone greatly dislike the quarrelsome busybody it was his lot to play.

The Dorothy Fenton of Miss Edith Smith was quite too pretty and charming and she had a singularly handsome aunt in Mrs. Fenton as played by Miss Alys Rees who really excels in these roles.

Mr. James Jolly doubled two characters, and his Quilton the family butler was excellent. The Earl of Hassenden (Mr. Frank Vosper) about exhausts the list and he looked a very brave and supercilious young Ensign and I felt quite relieved that by the united efforts of Lady Ursula, Dorothy, and Sir George he was prevented from fighting that blessed duel.

There was lots of life and colour and go about the show and it pleased us all.

It seems to me though that it must be a great strain for a Company travelling in repertoire to fetch up in a place like Shanghai and have to put on an entirely new thing like "The Adventures of Lady Ursula."

A transient's sojourn in Shanghai is hardly conducive to applied study and the high quality of the Waring Company's work night after night in such differing types of plays as they put on is the best tribute one can pay to their ability and versatility.

This particular play needs a little more rehearsing and I hope Mr. Waring will not consider it necessary to put an undue strain upon his people.

He has brought a fine Company to the Far East, he produces splendidly—there has been nothing so good before he came—therefore one hopes he will not strain his players too much because after all, travelling about in the East, living in one's trunks, and enduring extremes of temperature and the kindness of friends is something to contend with!

This afternoon—a Matinee of "Romeo and Juliet"—and Miss Sherwin's Juliet is a wonderful and very beautiful thing. Mr. Waring's Romeo is very fine and worthy of his Juliet.

In the evening, "The Purse Strings" to which all married ladies, and those who hope to be, should go.

W. Bruce Lockhart.

Famine Bazaar Success In Hankow

(China Press Correspondence)

Hankow, May 10, 1921.—The three-day famine relief Bazaar held in the New World building May 6-8 under the joint auspices of the Hankow International Famine Relief Committee and the Hankow North China Famine Relief Society is admitted by many to be the biggest thing of its sort ever undertaken by Chinese and foreigners in Hankow.

City wide publicity had been done through various means to advertise for the Bazaar. A parade of decorated motor cars gave no little excitement to the street people of Hankow, this being the first time in the history of Hankow to employ motor cars for publicity purposes.

The voluntary service offered by sing-song girls of Hankow formed another feature, and it must be admitted that partly to their activities the success of the event has been due. The girls were all dressed in simple clothes of the same fashion specially made for the purpose. In the second day of the Bazaar, the Civil Governor of Honan, Mr. Chang Fung-tai, sent his most valuable ancient pictures to Hankow for show. The pictures are the masterpieces of the most famous artist of Tang Dynasty, and are about sixteen hundred years old.

The amount of money from this affair is not yet known, but it is expected to be about $70,000.

Plan Entertainments For U.S. Sailors; Picnic On May 21

During the next month or more, special entertainments will be given for the Navy men at the Navy Y.M.C.A. and under the direction of the ladies of the American Woman's Club and of the Overseas League. The first affair will be a musical entertainment on Wednesday, May 18, at 8 p.m. Mrs. S. M. Cowles and Mrs. James MacDonell have arranged a most interesting program.

On Saturday, May 21, at 3 p.m. will occur the big picnic party at Hongkew Park and the Navy boys will be the guests of the ladies of the American Woman's Club. Games and sports will be held. Mr. C. D. Glauque and Mr. C. H. McCloy will arrange many interesting events including that classic, a tug of war.

A little later it is anticipated that the U.S.S. Huron will give a ship's Dance and especially in honor of the many kind ladies who in times past have entertained the Navy men so finely here.

It is hoped that smokers and other interesting entertainments will also be held aboard the ships.

Empress Sails Today, Taiyo Due Tomorrow Night

The tender conveying outgoing passengers for Manila and Hongkong to the Empress of Asia will leave the Customs Jetty at 9 o'clock this morning. The Asia sails from Woosung at noon. Incoming passengers and mails were brought up from Woosung left evening.

The Admiral Liner Wenatchee, with the Seattle commercial mission which has been sightseeing and trade promoting in Shanghai during the steamer's stay in port, left early yesterday morning for Manila and Hongkong.

The T.K.K.'s new big liner, the Taiyo Maru, formerly the German Cap Finisterre, sails from Nagasaki at 9 o'clock this morning for Shanghai, starting its first leg of its first voyage in the San Francisco-Far Eastern service.

The Taiyo is scheduled to arrive off Woosung at 6 p.m. tomorrow, and the tender with incoming passengers will reach the Customs Jetty at 9 p.m. The tender with outgoing passengers will leave the Jetty at 1 p.m., Monday.

Passengers arriving in Shanghai yesterday on the Empress of Asia include Messrs. E. G. Barnes, H. Gulick, A. Krisel, L. R. Wheen, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Haughwout, and Mr. and Mrs. N. W. Hickling; for Manila, Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Hueglin, Messrs. E. G. Redline and A. B. Tigh; for Hongkong: Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Milne, Jr., and Mr. H. G. Morton.

The Bandman Co.

Responding to popular demand, the Bandman Company will repeat "Afgar" tonight at the Olympic Theater instead of playing a variety show, as previously announced. The Company will give its farewell performance tomorrow afternoon when "Old Bill" is to be repeated. Children will be admitted to all parts of the theater at half price.

FOREIGNERS IN SUIYUAN FLEE, FEAR SOLDIERS

May 15 Set For Sack Of City—Frantic Appeals To Peking

(China Press Correspondence)

Suiyuan, May 8.—The atmosphere here becomes more tense as the day for the soldiers' ultimatum to expire draws near. Officials and gentry are frantically wiring to Peking for money to pay the troops, who have promised the sacking of the town should their seven months' arrears remain unpaid by May 15, but it appears that Peking is too busy entertaining the Super-Tuchuns to pay heed to the cry.

It may also be true that the enemies of Tutung Tsai Chen-yun, knowing that, if the threatened mutiny of his soldiers takes place, General Tsai's career will be definitely ended, are placing obstacles in the way of the attention of the Peking government to the matter.

The troops in the Suiyuan territory consist of the First Division, who are mostly Chihli and Shantung men, taken beyond the Great Wall by General Tsai upon his appointment three years ago to the Tutungship of that territory. They are rather better than the average lot. Parties of soldiers have recently conducted illegal requisitions on merchants in Suiyuan city. They go in armed parties, stating to the shop-keepers that they have no desire to become outlaws, but that desperation drives them to such straits as their officers are endeavoring to keep them quiet, knowing that if they resort to methods bringing on their disbandment all possibilities of the army's being transferred to the wealthy province of Kansu are at an end.

On the first of May, the troops discouraged by General Tsai's long absence, from the belief that they would ever receive their arrears or get past Ma Fu-hsiang's Mohammendans whom they great respect, into Kansu, announced their intention of sacking Suiyuan. With great effort the civil officials, Chamber of Commerce and higher military officers persuaded them to postpone the sacking to May 15, and at once petitioned Peking and Tutung Tsai, who has recently come to the capital from Tientsin, for assistance. Scores of the more peaceably inclined of the troops are deserting, coming south from Suiyuan in the freight-cars of the newly-completed Suiyuan line. The police are practically the only local troops and the Mongols whose army is only six-hundred north of Suiyuan, are carrying things with a high hand.

The foreign residents of Suiyuan are already sending their women and children out of the city, and if relief does not come expect themselves to leave before the date set for the sack. They consist of several missionaries of the Swedish Alliance mission and Mr. Maman, of the British-American Tobacco Company.

Peking Drafting Rules For Koreans To Checkmate Japs

(China Press Correspondence)

Peking, May 10.—The Peking Government is drafting a special set of rules applying to all Koreans who cross the border into Chinese territory. Those Koreans who do cross will be compelled to obey these rules to the letter, according to Government officials and in addition they will be watched closely to prevent their fomenting trouble along the borders. The measure is taken to prevent Japan's offering a new excuse for maintaining her military police along the border or adding to that force. Japan has demanded the right to try such Koreans as come into China but China insists that she alone has the right to try them on Chinese soil and is making a vigorous protest.

(China Press Correspondence)

Peking, May 11.—Loss of Chinese life and property as the result of the Hungchun Incident have been estimated by Sun Liehchun, Tuchun of Heilungkiang, as the result of an investigation made by the Taoyin of Yenchi, to be lives 160, and $8,321,920. Tuchun Sun seeks authority from the Government for lodging a protest with the Japanese Consul there, but was informed yesterday that, owing to the absence of the Japanese Minister, the matter would not be brought up for discussion until his return to Peking.

JAPS HOLD UP TRAMS

(Dalta News Agency)

Peking, May 13.—The Japanese have detained eight cars of flour that were destined for the relief of the sufferers in Imanin Maritime province. They held up these cars at the station of Evgenievka, notwithstanding that the Interallied Technical Committee had given permission for the flour to go on to Iman.

Hangchow College Notes

On last Saturday was held the 4th annual invitation track-meet for the preparatory schools which are the natural feeders for Hangchow College. Invitations were extended to and teams sent by the following schools: Vincent Miller (Soochow), James Sprunt (Kiangyin), Lowrie Institute (Shanghai), Presbyterian (Ningpo), Kashing High (Kashing), Wayland (Hangchow), San Dzai (Hangchow), Hangchow College Preparatory.

Hangchow College Preparatory School scored first place with 52 points; Wayland Academy, second, with 33 points; James Sprunt Academy, third, with 23½ points. Vincent Miller deserves honorable mention with 10 points scored on two first places.

The individual stars of the day were Dzao Lien Fang, who won 19 points for the College Preparatory School, and Tsang Sing Kwang, who won 17 points for Wayland.

The following is a summary of the events:

1. 100 yd. dash. Won by Dzao Lien Fang (HCCPS). Time—11 1/5".

After the meet, a relay race of approximately half a mile was participated in. The teams finished in the order named: Hangchow College Preparatory School, Lowrie Institute, James Sprunt Academy, Kashing High School.

Today the boys from Presbyterian Academy, Ningpo, played off a doubles tennis match against the College Preparatory boys and won two sets to one. Then a basketball game was indulged in, and again the Ningpo boys came off the victors, to the tune of 34-2.

A Commencement Program Committee has been named and is making plans for Commencement Day to be held June 25.

President J. Leighton Stuart, of Peking University, and Dr. John Gowdy, of Foochow, made a week-end visit to the College over which ill be held next Wednesday. Last Sunday.

Rain Brings Joy To Changlihsien

(China Press Correspondence)

Changlihsien, May 9.—Joy over the recent copious rains has found expression in a six days' theater, provided for the public by the Peking-Mukden R. R. station staff at a cost of several hundred dollars. The surrounding fields now resemble ant-hills in the frantic activity of the farmers to get their spring crops in while the soil is damp.

The District Magistrate has in hand $1,500 and is collecting more, for the purpose of opening a school to teach trades to morphine victims. There is already a detention hospital where these unfortunates are forcibly detained and supposedly cured of the appetite; but having no means of livlihood, on being released they soon drift back to their old ways.

Yuan Shih-kai's Sons See Washington

(China Press Correspondence)

Nanking, May 13.—In a letter dated March 26 to their elder brother, Keh-chuen, at Tientsin, William, Alexander, Henry and Thomas, the ninth, tenth, eleventh, and twelfth sons of Yuan Shih-kai respectively the late President of China stated that they visited the White House and Capitol and called on President Harding a few days ago and were cordially entertained.

They also called on Hon. Alfred Sze, Chinese Minister to America. The minister entertained them with a Chinese meal.

They are studying in America, having taken up English, History, geography, and mathematics with a view to entering college soon. Letters will reach them if addressed to Prof. Skilling, Middlebury, Vermont, U.S.A.

Japan To Reduce Military Budget, Says Newspaper

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, May 11.—It is reported, apparently on good authority, that the Army and Navy authorities are seriously considering effective retrenchment in the next budget, and it is announced that an Army Readjustment Commission has been appointed.

Moreover, the usually well-informed "Chugai Shogyo Shimbun" reports that the Finance Minister, with the Cabinet's approval, has drawn up rules for the next budget, curtailing fresh enterprises and loans and also naval and military expenditure, and including a recommendation for the withdrawal of the army from Siberia.

Army officials deny the rumor of the establishment of a new division in Hokkaido.

Russian Women To Aid Agriculturalists

(Dalta News Agency)

Moscow, May 10.—The Non-partisan Conference of Women has opened Collective Agricultural Co-operative Associations to interest all women in the work of Social Organisation. They will establish Restaurants, Shops for the repairing of clothes, Day Nurseries, Kindergartens, Clubs, Libraries, and so forth. At this conference was brought out the fact that there is a steady and healthy growth in Soviet farmholding. Thus during February, 1919, there were only thirty-five Soviet estates, aggregatinig 36,000 acres, there were in January, 1920, two thousand six hundred estates, aggregating 4,200,000 acres. In July, 1920, the sum of these estates had gone up to three thousands and seventy-six estates, with a total of 6,000,000 acres.

Plague Prisoners Escape At Chefoo

(China Press Correspondence)

Chefoo, May 11.—Chefoo has been excited to learn that the hundred men who had been encamped on Kentucky Island off the plague infected ship the s.s. Kishniev escaped in the night.

It was known that the necessary quarantine restrictions were proving irksome for yesterday they had issued something in the nature of an ultimatum to the captain. Rumors to the effect that a contemplated mutiny was to be tried were current all day, but they were naturally discountenanced. Moreover it was known that soldiers had been added to the patrol, therefore it was felt that all was well. The utmost sympathy was felt for the quarantined ship's company but it was inevitable with such a scourge as plague on her, that quarantine restrictions should be imposed.

There have been fourteen deaths and thus it was not too much to expect that those who were on the ship would appreciate the reasonableness of the quarantine. The mat-sheds were put up on the Island and yesterday a hundred of the ship's company were removed from the vessel. But in the night, they managed to get sampans and escaped.

French Dancing Masters To Revive Classic Waltz

Leaders Of Movement Say Time Has Come To Abandon Shimmy, Fox Trot, Tango And Maxixe But New Rival Appears In Hungarian Czarda

Paris, March 30.—The campaign against dances of American and exotic origin which has been waged here for the last few months is expected to bear fruit tomorrow when the French Dancing Masters Congress will celebrate the Eastertide with a resurrection of the classic waltz.

According to the leaders of the movement the time has come to call a halt on the shimmy, fox trot, tango and maxixe and get back to elemental purism. However, the new Boston devised by Prof. Weyne of Rotterdam is considered ethically proper and may be danced by the best society. But all the other spring creations are merely adaptations of the waltz of grandfather's time.

Simultaneously with the passing of the tango and the one step Paris dancers apparently have decided not to heed the decree of the waltz experts and are paying huge sums to learn the steps of the new Hungarian czarda. Originally a folk dance in Hungary, this dance has found its way here, thanks to the Archduke Albert, a gay scion of the Archduke Frederick of Austria, who has exhibited the new steps privately in Montmartre palaces as well as in private homes, where the spectators at first were shocked by the languorous movements, faintly resembling the most extreme contortions of the shimmy. It is even predicted that the czarda is more likely to gain favor in the select dance halls than the ancient waltz.

The reform movement, however, is sure to have one adherent in Isadora Duncan, who in an interview this morning declares that she is willing to go to Russia if invited, as "Paris prefers the jazz band and fox trot to the symphonies of Beethoven or idealistic interpretations" such as those which gained her fame.

DRAMBUIE

Bonnie Prince Charlie

"Drambuie," or, as it might properly be termed, "Prince Charlie's Liqueur," has behind it a history unequalled by any of the highest-class liqueurs of the present day.

It was originally brought over from France in 1745 by a French attendant on Prince Charles Edward when he landed in Scotland in his gallant but ill-starred attempt to regain the throne of his fathers.

After Culloden, when the Prince was in hiding in the Western Isles, one—Mackinnon of Strathaird—entertained the Prince, and assisted in his escape to the mainland of Scotland, and to this Mackinnon the recipe of the much-prized liqueur was given as a souvenir.

For a hundred and seventy-five years the secret of its preparation has remained in one family, and the manufacture has been carried on uninterruptedly by successive members of it until the present day.

It was so highly esteemed in those days, that, while brandy was the beverage used on ordinary occasions, this Liqueur was considered so precious that it was only passed round once:—at the finish of the banquet. Hence the title given by the Highlanders, "Drambuie,"—a name contracted from the Gaelic phrase, "An Dram Buidheach," meaning "the drink that satisfies."

Since the "'45" it has continued to hold the post of honour on the tables of some of the oldest and best known of the great West Highland families.

CONVICT AUTOIST WITHOUT LIGHTS IN EARLY MORNING

Mr. V. Haimovitch was convicted in the United States Court for China yesterday and sentenced to pay the costs of a police charge of having driven a motor car on the Bund at 4:10 a.m. Tuesday, with lights extinguished.

The accused, it developed from the testimony, had just completed a circle of the Rubicon. He was accompanied by a young lady whom he had but escorted upstairs to her apartments in the Palace hotel when arrested.

The lights, Mr. Haimovitch said, shone brightly on the early morning ride and also when he stopped at the Palace. The machine had become dark only after the young lady had said "good night."

The inspector pressing the charge urged that the lighting of the machine must be defective. The car had previously caused the arrest of two others who drove in darkness, he said.

Investigation brought out that the car was a borrowed one. Search of the license records revealed that it was owned by Miss F. Ezra, of 18 Yates Road.

Koo Urged To Seek Modification Of Narcotic Laws

In accordance with the decision of the annual meeting of the International Anti-Opium Association at Shanghai, a telegram has been sent to Dr. Wellington Koo, China's delegate at the League of Nations, asking him to introduce a resolution at the League to secure the modification of the existing laws of the various countries to limit the manufacture of morphia and other narcotics to medical purposes only.

The message said the foreign countries must be made to live up to the decisions of the Hague Convention to which they are signatories and that the local associations are agreed that the best protection for China against opium and drug evils, which are threatening the lives of millions in China is restrictions imposed by the foreign countries.

University Club Here Plans Dinner Dance

The American University Club will hold a dinner-dance on Friday May 27, according to the decision of the executive committee at a tiffin-meeting yesterday at the Union Club. The place will be announced by the social committee later. A business meeting will interperse the dinner and the dance.

The meeting received the report of the policy committee yesterday on the progress made in the giving of series of lectures under the auspices of the club. The three speakers already secured for the series are Dr. F. L. Hawks Pott president of St. John's University; Dr. Robert Fitch of Hangchow and Mr. Hu Suh of Peking University, known as the literary revolutionist.

Mr. Loy Chang was elected a member of the executive committee to succeed Mr. David Z. T. Yui to represent Harvard.

London, May 12.—The Chairman of the Cunard line, Sir Alfred Booth, is stated to be among the 400 directors, managers and clerks who went to Southampton to sign on as stewards on board the Aquitania. A number of titled and other passengers also called at the London offices today and offered to act as stewards.

TO DEPORT CHINESE

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Manila, May 13.—All Chinese illegally entering the Islands are to be rounded up and deported in future. The Customs Bureau has announced that the waters around Mindanao will be rigorously policed.

Services Aboard Ships

On Sunday morning at 10:30 there will be Services held aboard U.S.S. Huron and U.S.S. New Orleans. Mr. L. E. McLachlin and Rev. M. T. Stauffer will be the speakers. Special vocal and instrumental music will be provided on both ships. Ship boats for the services will leave the French Jetty at 10 a.m. for the New Orleans and from the Customs Jetty at the same hour for the Huron. Friends are invited to attend.

BASEBALL SEASON TO OPEN TODAY WITH SHANGHAI AND CRACK HURON TEAM OPPOSING

Flagship's Nine Signs Up To Play Before Their Anchor Is Dropped; Huron Has Cream Of Players In American Asiatic Fleet

The baseball season for 1921 will be officially opened at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the Race Course field, with the playing of the first of what is expected to develop into a series of five games between the Shanghai Baseball Club and the crack team from the American flagship Huron.

Matchmaker Major Ross and Manager Johnny Knowland of the civilian club were aboard the Huron the moment it tied up to its buoys and in consultation with Lieutenant G. W. Johnson, the ship's baseball manager. And in spite of the suddenness of the proposal, the willing Lieutenant signed up his ball tossers and indicated that they would do their utmost to show Shanghai some regular baseball.

GOOD IN MANILA

The Huron nine, it is certain, will put the Shanghai men on their mettle. The lineup which the navy will put against Shanghai will include seasoned players, selected from every boat and station in the Orient for their playing qualities. The flagship has at least fifteen first string men to select from.

Shanghai will be outclassed at the opening of the season, in the matter of preparation. The local men have had only two or three weeks of practice, and have never yet gotten together in serious inside baseball. Neither have they yet been called upon to extend themselves.

The Huron men, on the other hand, come straight from a successful season in the Manila Bay league. Their players include not only the regular Huron team, but also four or five new men, picked up from the Cavite navy yard, who as yet have not worked with the flagship's team. Lieutenant Johnson indicated yesterday that these men would be worked into today's lineup, for try-outs.

The games which had been tentatively arranged between the boys off the gunboats El Cano, Palos and Monocacy for today and tomorrow have been postponed because of the arrival of the flagship and the inspections and drills and practices which attend the arrival of the admiral. The Huron team very conveniently steps into today's date, and the New Orleans nine into the game for tomorrow.

The spectators stands which are being erected at the Race Course grounds are not expected to be ready for use this afternoon, though they are promised by the No. 1 stand-builder for tomorrow's games with the New Orleans men.

Weaver, the Huron star pitcher, is expected to twirl a few innings to keep his arm limber. He is in excellent shape, having just come from a very successful season in the Manila League. Knock and O'Barr also will be given their turns. Shanghai will probably start with Merrill in the box, and finish out with Hopkins. Glauque, the former Oberlin star will be on the receiving end to be relieved later by Griffith. Maloney will handle first while Hopkins is twirling, and then go to third.

SERIES OF FIVE

Major Ross last night said that he hopes today's game with the Huron nine will be the first of a series of five. He broached the subject yesterday afternoon to Lieut. Johnson, and while it was too early for the officer to decide upon, there was every indication that the series will develop. Major Ross and Lieut. Johnson will talk the subject over again today and tomorrow.

The New Orleans game tomorrow is expected to result into the first serious effort of the cruiser's team. They have practiced two games with the Shanghai nine and have gone through some working out between times, so they are about ready to settle down to good baseball now.

No lineup of Sunday's game has as yet been put out. It is believed that the sailors will stick to the players who played in the practice games. They have held fairly close to one lineup in their two games, and seem to have confidence in it.

Burman probably will pitch for the Navy and Fuller catch. Shanghai's lineup will be about the same as today's with Glauque out, and Merrill and Hopkins dividing the pitching between them.

MENDACIOUS AND ALSO PERNICIOUS

Fall River Hop Never Got Within Famine Distance Of Roughtown

BY "BUGS" BAER

Bugs:

This underrated champ of Roughtown was a hooey bum in comparison with my protege, Fall River Hopkins. Deep down in your Portland cement heart you know Gink was as helpless in his hands as a water bug in the Sahara.

The night they met, Hop knocked Gink for a row of brightly painted baby carriages. The Roughtown eight-day wristwatches had all run down before Gink came up smiling like a mule in a thistle patch.

Yours for a fight or frolic,
RAYMOND,
New Brunswick, New Jersey.

Fall River Hopkins was a good man. In Fall River. The first mistake he made was leaving the protecting shadow of the Fall River Jail. He came into Roughtown on the Spasmodic and Jerky R. R. He took an awful beating from the Spasmodic and Jerky roadbed. This was the finest dynamite ballasted roadbed in the world. Each car on the Jerky only had two wheels on it. And both those wheels were on the same side. The passengers used to wear one roller skate while riding on the Jerky. They used to hang that boot out of the Tug-and-Pullman palace cars and skate along on one side.

ONLY ONE RAIL

The Jerky was the famous road that was so rough they could only serve scrambled eggs in the dining car. They used to step out and put mustard plasters on the engine to make it jump across the drawbridges. There was only one rail the entire length of the track. That engineer on the Jerky would make Bird Millman look like a sick man in a wheelchair on the Atlantic City Boardwalk. She was no wire pedestrian compared to the man who slept at the throttle of the S. and J.

The road had no regular route. The tracks had to follow the train. Sometimes the junk caravan would stop inside the ticket offices of stations. Sometimes the engineer would stop in towns. Sometimes he would stop in the suburbs and let the town grow up around him.

A strange thing about this road was that it was all uphill.

Lots of railroads under Government ownership were uphill one way. But the Spasmodic and Jerky was uphill both ways. Scientists like Darwin, Huxley, Ed Curley, Mme. Curie, Mike Donaldson and Havelock Ellis have sprained their brains on this curious and isolated problem. The S. and J. was uphill both coming and going. That was all there was to it.

ROUGH ROADBED

Even Edgar Lucien Larkin, who knows twice as much as is necessary, admitted that his science was helpless on the Spasmodic and Jerky. This was the road that Fall River Hop picked out as his first Roughtown opponent. The roadbed was so rough that the fireman couldn't keep the coal in the furnace. He used to hold it in with his bare hands.

The commutation tickets were made of sheet iron. The conductor's punch was a riveting machine. The berths had zoo bars on 'em. The engineer used to stop at every house on the route, lean out and kiss somebody goodby. Every trip was liable to be the one after his last.

An ant got on the track five miles on the wrong side of Roughtown. The engineer threw off the emergency brake and the train folded up like a magician's flower pot.

That was the nearest Hop got to Roughtown. He was knocked adult cold on a half-fare ticket.

Plan Many Entertainments For Far Eastern Athletes

In addition to the purely athletic contests which the Far Eastern Games call forth, and also in addition to the mass demonstrations which have been planned to take place on Monday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of the games week, the Contest Committee, in order to secure the highest results from the games, is planning several social events in addition to those scheduled in the program.

While these are not all fixed positively, the following are under consideration, and no doubt will be consummated:

(1) The Chinese Chamber of Commerce, the Chinese Bankers' Association, and the Chinese Cotton Mill Owners' Association have combined, and will extend an invitation to all athletes, officials, and guests at the games. The arrangements call for a tea party, probably on Saturday afternoon, May 28, in some well located garden, where the China Committee, together with these hosts, will be at home to all visitors and guests from outside of Shanghai.

(2) On Sunday, May 29, the Chinese Y.M.C.A. is planning a religious service for all athletes and visitors who wish to attend at 4 p.m. in Martyrs' Memorial Hall, 120 Szechuen Road. A special program, consisting of choral music and other features, is being arranged.

(3) Probably on Friday or Sunday night, June 3 or June 5, the Shanghai Japanese Athletic Association is to be at home to officials and guests of the meet, and to Japanese athletes. The idea is to have a dinner at the Japanese Club.

(4) On Saturday night, June 4, the distribution of prizes will take place. The final arrangements for this have not yet been made, but there are several possibilities in the air. One is that the distribution take place in some public hall, such as the Town Hall, or in some theater large enough to hold all those interested and who desire to come. Or possibly it will take place together with some social event at one of the hotels, in the nature of a ball, or something of that character.

Without doubt there will be some other smaller events during the week among more limited groups, and all in all, the social events of the Far Eastern Games should play an important part in helping to create that international good feeling which comes from friendly social intercourse.

Filipinos Sending 139 Athletes Here

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Manila, May 13.—One hundred and thirty-nine Filipino athletes are leaving here on May 19 for Shanghai, where they will compete in the Far Eastern Olympic games.

Yorkshire Scores 197 For 8 Wickets

(Reuter's Service)

London, May 12.—The match between the Australians and Yorkshire at Bradford was continued today in fine weather, after the overnight rain, and before some 15,000 spectators. The wicket being soft, scoring was slow and somewhat difficult.

Yorkshire, who had made 26 runs for one wicket before stumps were drawn yesterday, brought their first innings total to 197 for eight wickets. Rhodes contributed 63 runs and Sutcliffe 45.

Cricket Game This Afternoon

Shanghai cricket players who will play on the team to oppose Hongkong men here on May 24 will practice at the Shanghai Cricket Club grounds this afternoon, beginning at 2:30 o'clock and again tomorrow.

KIANGWAN DERBY IN MAIN EVENT OF TODAY'S CARD

Program Is First Of Two-Day Meeting-Half Moon Bay Picked As Favorite

The Kiangwan Derby Cup, one of the important track events of the year, is to be run as fifth race of today's card at Kiangwan opening the 7th meeting of the International Recreation Club which will continue through a second day Monday. The purse of today's big race is $3,000 and as forty entries have been posted it is probable that a large field of starters will take the track.

Damp and unfavorable weather through the week has left the track soft and it is unlikely that any particular fast time may be expected. Indications last night were for continued cloudy weather.

Mr. F. S. Gibbings' chestnut Half Moon Bay, winner of the Derby at the Spring Meeting of the Shanghai Race Club, is looked upon as the favorite in today's big race. Other likely candidates that have been entered and are expected to start include Salvation, winner of the Kiangwan Champions at the New Year meeting, Nationalist and Chandler, both of which made excellent showings at the New Year meeting, Golden Rod, The Copper Bird, Instow and St. Pauls.

One steeplechase is included on today's card. This is the Novices Steeplechase, a handicap, to be run as the sixth race. Eight entries have been posted for this.

The big event of Monday's card is the City and Suburban Stakes, a handicap. This is to be run as the eighth race of the day.

On both days of the meeting the first sadling bell will ring at 1:30 o'clock. The customary transportation services to the track by special trains and by motors from the various garages will be provided.

AMERICANS PICKED TO WIN PAIRS WITH ENGLAND TAKING EIGHTS AND DENMARK FOURS

Henli Regatta Will Afford Excellent Races As Crews Are All Working Hard; U.S.A. Boats Figured To Finish Second In Eights And Fours

(BY STROKE)

Considerable interest is being shown as the training for the coming Henli regatta is nearing its end.

The principal events are the International Eights, Fours and Pairs.

America is well represented as they have plenty of finished oarsmen to choose from and undoubtedly hold the premier position.

Crews representing England deserve credit for their conscientious training which no doubt will be reflected in their performances at Henli.

Scotland has had the misfortune of losing their stroke through sickness at the critical moment of their training. However their new stroke is an excellent oar and can be relied on in putting up a game race.

The crew representing Denmark have worked hard in their training and although they have two unexperienced oarsmen have come on wonderfully and are expected to annex the Fours.

Below I venture to give the probable winners:

Eights: England 3 lengths.
U.S.A. ½ length
Scotland.

Fours: Denmark 2 lengths
U.S.A.
England.
Scotland.

Pairs: U.S.A. 3 lengths.
Denmark 1 length.
Scotland ½ length
England.

LAWN BOWLS COMPETITION

At a meeting of the Committee of the Shanghai Lawn Bowls Association held at the Shanghai Recreation Club it was decided that the entries for the singles, pairs and rink association championships close an Monday, June 6.

It was also decided that the competition for the "Wallace" Cup take place on Saturday, July, 23.

RIFLE MEETING BEGINS TODAY; TWO EVENTS ON

Big S.R.A. Competition To Continue Tomorrow And Next Saturday

The four-day program of the 20th annual rifle meeting of the Shanghai Rifle Association begins today. The first event will take place this afternoon at 2 o'clock. The shooting will continue tomorrow, next Saturday and a week from tomorrow at the Rifle Range. Seven events, including the rifle match between the association and the famous London City Rifle Club, are scheduled.

This afternoon, the 200 and 300 yards of Event No. 2 and the 400 yards of Event No. 3 will take place. Event Nos. 2 and 3 are both deliberate firing competitions. Tomorrow there will be the 300 yards for Event No. 3, 500 and 600 yards for Event No. 4, 200 and 600 yards for Event No. 5 and 700 yards in Event No. 7. Competitions will be held both in the morning and afternoon.

The match with the London sharpshooters takes place next Saturday while the remaining events will be staged a week from tomorrow.

Gorky Scores Soviet As Breeder Of Anarchy, Chaos

'Way In Which Things Are Handled Is Way Of Savages,' He Boldly Declares In Petrograd Paper

It is not often that one finds some of the worst charges levelled against the Soviet regime confirmed by a recognised leader of the Bolshevist movement. The following article was published by Maxim Gorky, who is something in the nature of the Commissary of Science and Art in the Soviet Government. The picture he draws of the chaos into which ignorance and anarchy have thrown Russia is pathetic. The parcels sent through the post wrapped in the canvases of valuable paintings cut from their frames; the moujik stealing rivets from the sleepers on the railroads to make horseshoes—the things would probably be angrily denied if they came from the pen of an imperial investigator.

Maxim Gorky's article appeared in the Pravda (the Truth) of Petrograd.

BY MAXIM GORKY.

What is a workman?

A workman is a man who takes a mass of any given matter—iron, clay or wood—and transforms it into a beautiful or useful object, into a tool or instrument of precision, into complicated machines, which are almost living things; into beautiful windows, into fine furniture—in a word, into anything that lightens the labor of men or adds to the joy of their life.

Everything (not produced by nature) on the face of the earth has been created by the work of man, and everything that surrounds us is the crystallisation of the flesh and blood of the workman. Everything, whatever it may be, is the incarnation of human energy.

That is an indisputable truth.

And this being so, it would seem that the workman should understand the educational value of his work and hold in high esteem that which is the product of his labor.

Especially today is this knowledge necessary, for now the treasures of the country, the fruits of the labor of the workmen, have become the property of those who created them, and of the whole Nation, and are not merely the belongings of a few thousand masters of the bourgeoisie, as they were before the revolution.

And yet up to now this has not been among us understood.

WAY OF SAVAGES.

The way in which the things are handled is a way of savages who have neither understanding of the usefulness nor appreciation of the beauty of these things, and what is worse, who do not realise that now all things are the property of the republic.

"What does it matter? It is not ours," says the savage from Samara as he smashes up a priceless piece of furniture in Petrograd to build his fire.

And the savage from Penza destroys the things of Samara, and thus over the whole length and breadth of Russia is going on mad destruction of the productions of labor and of all things that are necessary to the life of man.

There is another way—that of the stupid vandals who, destroying and slaughtering everything, exclaim in their overweening assurance, "We will do better." These boasters ought to understand that the day is not near in which it will be possible for them to do better than has already been done, to make things better than those already made—things which exist and which ought to have existed, which for countless ages have insured man's comfort and lightened his burden.

We shall for a long time be prevented from working in peace, for our enemies have a primordial interest that we should remain naked, a prey to cold and hunger and in a condition which would reduce us as soon as possible to a state of physical depletion and moral barbarism. Our enemies hope to reduce us to complete impotence and drive us to despair, so that they can urge the Russian people to surrender at mercy for a piece of rotten bread and a few rags.

PLAY INTO ENEMIES' HANDS.

So it is perfectly clear that the savages, and boasters who destroy the assets of the nation render service to their irreconcilable enemies, work for their own abasement and strengthen the hope which the capitalists still nourish of stifling and crushing the Russian revolution by misery and the wearing out of its strength.

Judged by this standard the act of destroying a thing of daily use is both a political and a social crime.

We are much less rich in manufactured things than in raw materials, which we cannot work up today because our frontiers are closed. Perhaps tomorrow it may be the turn of the negroes, for the hunting down of Russia is no yet near its end.

We must all permeate ourselves with the idea that we are engaged in a death struggle and that the partisans of the old order are still passing strong.

That is why it is essential, both from the standpoint of morals and of politics, that we should conserve and treat with greater care our national patrimony, which is being destroyed and dissipated with such frightful rapidity.

UNHOLY JOY IN RUINATION

While producing little or nothing we are consuming at an alarming rate. Without rhyme or reason, and often with a kind of unholy joy, things are destroyed which are not only of great intrinsic value for our homes, but which have a tremendous artistic, historic and educational value, or which are models of craftmanship and of art.

Thus, for instance, one sees parcels sent from the provinces by post wrapped in the canvases of magnificent pictures cut from their frames. Thus in winter are the stoves heated with splendid pieces of furniture, each of which is worth many tons of wood. And it would have been possible to exchange this furniture for food and butter and saws and axes and scythes from Finland.

I repeat that for a long time we shall have to do with what we have, for it is not tomorrow that the capitalists of the Entente will renounce their policy of preveting us from working peacefully and productively. It is, therefore, of the utmost importance that we should respect and conserve with care our present assets.

STUPIDITY RIVALS CRUELTY

This carelessness toward labor and the products of labor is playing into our enemies' hands. And work is done with shameful incuriousness and often in an absurd manner. Every day one sees burlesque examples in which stupidity vies with cruelty and the ignorance of labor with the refusal to help or to learn.

On the ice of the Neva six bourgeois shivering with cold are pushing sleds overburdened with planks for boat building. They slip, they fall, and the planks slide onto the ice. These makeshift workmen are guarded by eight powerful youths with guns. The convoy moves slowly as a funeral procession. It would cost the guards nothing to help those people, who for the first time in their lives are called upon to do hard physical labor. But they never even have the idea of holding back with the butts of their rifles the planks which slip from the sledges. They march one behind the other, swearing volubly and, made weary by this useless task, they yawn and whistle and waste utterly time that is so precious.

In another place a car is being loaded. On one axle are piled heavy barrels of cement, cases of lead, pieces of machinery, etc. On the other, rocking chairs, household goods, a perambulator—things that are quite light. The overloaded axle will of course become heated and the car will not reach its destination. I have been a porter myself. I know that had I tried to load a wagon in that way my boss would have boxed my ears and told me to go to the devil. And I should have deserved it, for I should have been injuring the rolling stock.

In another place a mechanical saw is being used to cut rafters and planks from a house which has been torn down. The wood is full of nails and the saw groans painfully. It is quickly spoiled and its teeth broken, yet it is common knowledge that we have no saws and that the price is so high that for one saw we have to give many bushels of wheat, and wheat itself is scarce.

Houses are being destroyed in a most revolting fashion. The windows are all broken, though we have no glass, and it would be so easy to take out the panes without breaking them. In the barracks transparent paper takes the place of window glass, letting in no light and keeping in no heat, therefore more furniture is burnt to warm the barracks.

Metal roofing is allowed to lie for months in the midst of the wreckage of destroyed houses. It rusts and becomes absolutely useless. The roofs of the inhabited houses are also rusted and the rain comes through, but nothing is done to mend them. Walls and ceilings fall in and well built houses rapidly become uninhabitable.

And this is how by sheer stupidity, by lack of regard for their own labor, our people destroy the valuable assets of the nation and ruin the patrimony of the public.

Our streets are littered with pieces of iron and the moujik in his village has nothing where with to repair his wheels and axles, and cannot even forge shoes or nails for his horses or teeth for his rakes. That is why he goes out of the railway bridges and tries to saw off a piece of iron, or to loosen the rivets of the sleepers, or attempts to steal from the station the piece of metal that he needs. For a carload of iron the moujik would gladly barter a carload of wheat. Yet the hundreds of thousands of old saucepans that are scattered among the ruins of the houses would suit him very well and he could put to good use the window sashes and doors that are burned in the cities for heating purposes.

WORK BEFORE POLITICS

Doubtless these are all very minor matters, and particularly unimportant to us whose object is to teach the whole world a new order of things and a new manner life. But can one learn conscientiously from masters who themselves either do not know how to work or will not work who will soon have no clothes to put on their backs? I do not think the European workman can have any great respect for comrades who do not know how to organise their own labor. The politics of social revolution doubtless is very fine, but work comes first.

All these little things of which I have spoken are repeated by thousands, by tens of thousands, and they create an atmosphere of scandalous unrest, of laziness and of criminal carelessness, for all that goes to make up the patrimony of the public. Looked at as a whole, these little facts give real encouragement to the hopes and aims of the enemies of the working classes of Russia.

Fund To Develop Ideal Children

National Health Council Makes Offer To Cities

Washington, April 5.—Does any American city or town of between 20,000 and 60,000 population need help in raising its children? If so, the National Child Health Council, so it announced today, is willing to aid to the extent of $200,000.

The proposed aid will be administered over a period of five years in such a way as to obtain "as nearly as possible ideal conditions for the development of its children, from babyhood to adolescence, into sturdy, happy, useful citizens."

The town, the Child Health Council has decided, should be located in a county between 50,000 and 60,000 population, with the area outside of the city agricultural. The city itself, should have a normal percentage of its population engaged in manufacturing.

The committee which will recommend the town to be chosen for the experiment is headed by Dr. Richard A. Bolt of Baltimore, general director of the American Child Hygiene Association.

IS CALLED QUEEN OF MESOPOTAMIA

Miss Gertrude Bell Fills Most Important Office Of Any Woman In Great Britain

London, March 26.—Miss Gertrude Margaret Lowthian Bell, who has been engaged as adviser to the British Administrator in Mesopotamia, Sir Percy Cox, occupies the most important position of any woman under the British Government. Her report on Mesopotamian conditions was the first "Blue Book" ever written by a woman and showed her capacity in a remarkable light.

She is fifty-four years old, the daughter of Sir Hugh Bell, one of the biggest industrial magnates in the North of England, was educated at Oxford, has travelled widely and has written several books, among them "Poems from the Divans of Hafiz," "Palace and Mosque at Ukhaider," "Lafab Nameh" and "The Desert and the Town."

From 1917 until she received her present appointment she had been Assistant Political Officer in Bagdad and acquired the sobriquet of the "Uncrowned Queen of Mesopotamia." Three years ago she was appointed to commander of the Order of the British Empire.

Electrical Strike In Osaka Failure

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Osaka, May 13.—The electrical workers' strike here has proved a complete failure. Half of the workmen who were discharged on Monday have returned and been re-employed. On the first day of the strike the company paid ten yen to each workman remaining on duty and the same amount to those who returned to work. There has been no interference with the city's light and power, but the power houses are still strongly guarded.

The workmen's agitation has merely afforded the company opportunity to reduce its staff by weeding out undesirable employees.

Health, Beauty And The Home

Household Records

By Mrs. Christine Frederick,

The Distinguished Authority on Household Efficiency.

WHAT shall the housekeeper do with her receipts, clippings, cooking recipes and other household records? Even if she follows the budget system and keeps household accounts-she needs some form of holder or cabinet to keep her household data in order, just as the business man does, so as to be able to lay his hands promptly on certain information when he needs it.

Nothing is better for keeping receipts or paid bills than a vertical letter file with alphabetical index on the side. This letter file comes of light pasteboard and is about eighteen inches square by three inches thick and can be secured at any stationer's. To use it is very simple. You can index the bills either according to the first letter of the firm's name or according to the kind of things they cover. Under the latter plan bills for gas and groceries would be filed under "G," bills from the baker and the butcher under "B," and so on. Since this file is tightly closed when not in use there is no danger of the receipts falling out. It is neat enough to stand on the desk or in the business corner of the kitchen or living room.

The best thing to keep clippings in order is a set of 6x9-inch filing envelopes, such as are used in offices. Buy a dozen or more of these at a stationer's, together with a package of small labels. Decide on the subject you want each envelope to cover, place this name on the label, as "Health Hints," "Laundry Suggestions," etc., and place one of these on each of the envelopes, which can then be stood upright on the desk. Each envelope will hold a great number of clippings on any given subject.

Among the different kinds of records which need to be kept in every household are the following:

Sizes of shoes, hosiery, gloves, etc.; clothing in storage; number, cost and date of purchase of all linens; preserves and other food supplies; wedding, birthday and other anniversaries; gifts received.

Books owned in the home; books loaned; books to be read and bought; vocal and instrumental music; phonograph records; player piano rolls.

Family medical record; date and nature of all illnesses and injuries; date and nature of treatment by physician, oculist, dentist, chiropodist, etc.

Addresses—social, professional.

Newspaper and magazine clippings of health, beauty and household hints, baby hygiene advice, cooking recipes, garden and flower hints, entertainment suggestions, jokes, quotations, etc.

Home financial records covering real estate, taxes, insurance, bank accounts, bills receivable and payable, etc.

Inventory of clothing, furniture, jewelry and all other personal property.

It is obvious how helpful all of these records will be. For example, if the sizes of the shoes, gloves, collars, etc., for each member of the family be placed on a card, this may be taken in the shopping bag and will prove of great help in selecting the desired articles. A linen record is almost a necessity in order to compare the value of different makes of goods.

What books belong to the family? What musical selections are available, either on the phonograph or player piano or in sheet music? These facts are much more quickly learned from cards than by going over the books and pieces of music themselves. The medical record is of utmost value. A card should be kept for each child, so that full information as to his health record may be instantly available for health authorities, teachers or a new physician. Here is the way one child's card reads:

David Frederick, born September 18, 1907; vaccinated, March, 1912; chicken pox, Winter, 1913; eyes examined, glasses fitted, 1917; measles, January, 1920.

The record of addresses is simply following in the home the practice of every business office and library. A separate name is put on each card, together with address and other information, as, for example, Smith, Mrs. John R., 1452 Duncan avenue, Springfield, Ill. (Club leader interested in child welfare bills.)

All cards are arranged alphabetically in a filing box. The best size of card to use for addresses is one measuring three by five inches.

How much is your home really worth? What have you got to show to any insurance company as a basis for a claim? In most homes there is no adequate data on which to base value. No record is kept of the cost of furniture, furnishings and household equipment. But this is just what we should do as a protection in case of theft or fire. Owing to the difficulty of recalling exact amounts the owner of a home where loss has been sustained is always at a disadvantage. But if he had a carefully kept inventory he could back up his demands.

Mrs. Christine Frederick and Three of Her Children.

There should be an inventory of all silver, jewelry, clothes, furniture and other belongings, with the approximate cost of each article. Such an inventory is not hard to keep if it is started when the home is new. No manufacturer who expects to get insurance on his plant fails to inventory all its contents. But in the home, how seldom we keep an accurate record of the cost of anything. Yet such a record is of the utmost value in case of loss by fire or theft, as well as in other ways. The inventory is best kept in a book and the book should be placed in a fireproof drawer or in a safe deposit box at the bank.

So many women complain that there is nothing interesting or stimulating in the managing of a home, but is this not because they fail to apply as much business sense as they could to the handling of home affairs? Surely it is just as interesting to keep household records, file household papers and list the furnishings of the household as it is to do it for a business firm where one might be employed. The home is a woman's own business, and its proper conduct requires thought and executive ability just as much as any other. Whether a home is run in a business-like way or not depends largely on whether the home-maker handles its receipts, its bills and its household records as a business man would.

Massaging for Beauty

By Lina Cavalieri

The Most Famous Living Beauty.

MASSAGE is of two kinds—good and bad. It is good or bad according to the knowledge and skill of the masseuse. It is my cure-all. I rarely find it necessary to take medicine. Almost, never, in fact. It was Oliver Wendell Holmes, I believe, who wrote, "If all the drugs were thrown into the sea it would be hard on the fishes, but it would be better for humanity." That, coming from a man who knew medicine as he did, ought to have a very special emphasis put upon it.

Just now I want you to give particular consideration to massage as a beautifier. In that aspect I can most earnestly recommend it. For half my life I have had my face massaged frequently, and for many years I have had it massaged every day. With what result? That my face is absolutely free from blemishes. I resolved that it should approach the smoothness and clearness of an infant's skin, if care could achieve that effect, and I have succeeded.

Moreover, it will induce no abnormal growth of hair upon the face. With pleasure I lay the ghost of that fiction against massage. Despite all we hear to the contrary, unless it is done to excess, massage will not cause the growth of even the tiniest of beards.

If you are going to do it yourself, go to an expert and learn the correct method of massage. If you entrust this work to a masseuse, be sure she has had proper instruction and considerable experience. Bad massage is worse than none, for it will cause wrinkles instead of removing them. The masseuse must know the geography, as it were, of the muscles. She must learn to follow instead of countering those muscles.

The reason for this is very simple. The individual muscles, or groups of muscles, must be picked out or isolated and mechanically stimulated to contraction. The movements must be made in the direction of the muscle fibres, and the tips of the fingers must be carried along these, so as to promote the flow of lymph and increase tissue metamorphosis. The manipulation should be carried out systematically in definite order with a definite object.

Massage promotes the circulation. And by promoting circulation it nourishes parts of the body in which circulation is ordinarily defective. The well-nourished portions of the body are the last to grow old. By stimulating the circulation, massage nourishes the muscles that might otherwise grow flabby and tones up the skin that would grow dry and wrinkled.

I never let a day pass without massaging my face with a nourishing cream. Here is one that cleanses as well as feeds the skin: Almond oil, 2 ounces; spermaceti, ½ ounce; white wax, ½ ounce; cucumber juice, 1 ounce.

After facial massage with a cold cream some women of exceedingly sensitive skins choose to bathe the face in this or a similar lotion: Tincture of benzoine, 1 ounce; tincture of vanilla, 4 drams; sweet almond oil, 3 ounces; bitter almond oil, 1 dram; spermaceti, 5 drams; white wax, 5 drams; lanolin, 1 ounce; witch hazel, 1 ounce; rosewater, 3 ounces.

After you have had your face massaged several times by an expert masseuse and have learned the movements, then you can massage your own face with ease. Some become quite deft at facial massage in a short time. Others who have clumsy fingers or a lack of perception never master the art. Some beautiful women will never entrust their faces to a masseuse, I am told.

First look to the shadowy new lines upon your face. If there be none, consider where the lines form when you laugh, when you frown, when you sulk or when you cry. Anticipate these lines by nourishing well the muscles in those regions.

Remember, it is most important to keep the lines of the face as good as they were in the beginning, or better. Watch your beauty points carefully. If your face is too "jowl-like," massage it vigorously, with a rotary motion, to reduce the superfluous flesh. If it is too thin, apply a nourishing cream and rub it well into the skin every night before retiring. For a thin face I would advise this cream: Oil of sweet almonds, 6 ounces; oil of bitter almonds, 20 drops; balsam of tolu, 1 dram; tincture of benzoin, 1 dram; essence of orange, 6 drops; essence of cajeput, 6 drops.

For a too plump face, talcum powder is the only aid your hands will require, unless you prefer this: Almond milk, made from fifty crushed almonds and rosewater, 1 pint.

Neglected Food Fishes

By Rene Bache.

FISH (says the Government Fisheries Bureau) is quite as nutritious as beef or mutton, pound for pound, and it affords to the consumer just as much "protein"—the stuff that makes muscle and blood. But the average housewife is acquainted with hardly more than half-a-dozen kinds of fishes. Knowing no others, she restricts her purchases to those kinds. If she cannot get them she refuses to buy. As a result many kinds of fishes regarded in Europe as luxuries for the table are in this country thrown away.

Consider the "whiting," for example. How many people in this country have ever heard of it? Yet it is one of the most plentiful of our fishes, and hardly surpassed in edible quality by any.

In Europe the whiting is justly regarded as a first-class delicacy. It is a sea fish, slender and a foot or more long, which may be cooked in as many different ways as a fresh-water perch. In the year before the war 70,000,000 pounds of whiting were landed with nets in England and Wales.

Vast schools of whiting visit our Atlantic shores from New York northward in Spring and early Summer. Local markets are flooded with them. For lack of demand, millions of pounds caught in nets are either thrown back into the sea or else allowed to rot.

The whiting, by reason of its soft flesh, is not a "good shipper." It should be used within short distances of the fishery pots. Canned or salted in brine, it preserves its flavor admirably.

Another delicious fish, almost unknown in the United States, except to fishermen, is the "burbot"—the only fresh-water member of the cod family. In Europe it is esteemed a great luxury. Its flesh is white and delicate; its liver a morsel for the epicure. Otherwise called "eelpout," "ling" or "cusk," it is very abundant in the Great Lakes and in the lakes of New York and New England. A single female has been known to lay as many as 670,000 eggs.

The "bowfin" (also called "marshfish," or "willow pike") abounds in the Great Lakes region, in the Mississippi Valley and all over the eastern part of the United States from New York southward to Florida. But practically nobody eats it. Truth to tell, its flesh is too soft to be eaten fresh; but when salted or smoked it is one of the best of fishes for table use.

The bowfin is found only in North America, and is the sole survivor of a long-extinct family of fishes. It likes weedy, sluggish waters, and often the males may be caught with the hands in the shallows while guarding "nests" of eggs.

The "sablefish," or "black cod," inhabits deep water off the Pacific coast from San Francisco to Alaska. It is not a cod at all, but one of the richest and fattest of American fishes; its flesh white and flaky and almost free from bone, so that there is little waste. Its low market price makes it suitable for the humblest table, while its fine texture and exquisite flavor may well claim for it the approval of the fastidious millionaire.

Unfortunately, few people know the sablefish. Caught in immense numbers by the halibut fishermen it is thrown away because there is no market for it. Weighing fifteen pounds or more it can be shipped fresh to great distances.

The cheapest food now on the market, relatively to the nourishment it affords, is the "grayfish"—a market name bestowed upon the common dogfish, a small species of shark that runs in vast schools along our coasts. As sold, a can of it (price 10 cents) contains fourteen ounces of solid meat. The latter, though so low in cost, is rich, wholesome and exceedingly palatable. It may be served in a wonderful variety of ways.

The eulachon, or "candlefish," is by many people considered the finest food fish in all the world. Yet this relative of the common smelt—slender in form and about a foot long—is only now beginning to make its appearance in our markets, fresh, frozen, brine salted, smoked and canned. Native to Pacific waters from Oregon to Alaska, it runs up the rivers in enormous shoals to lay its eggs. After performing which duty it dies, a whole generation perishing as soon as it has provided for the next.

The candlefish is the fattest of fishes, but its oil has a peculiarly delicate, agreeable flavor. In Alaska it is commonly dried for use in Winter as an illuminant. When thus employed the tail of a specimen is inserted into a bottle-neck, and its nose is lighted. It will then burn for a couple of hours with a clear, steady white flame of about three candle-power. A better method, often adopted, is to run a wick through it.

Inasmuch as dealers will not handle any fishes for which there is not a substantial demand, it behooves American housewives to ask for these little-known species when they go to market. If they will ask, and keep on asking, the effect of their efforts will be to open up new and important sources of food supply.

Why So Many Housewives Are Nervous

IT is because of their vanity, their emotionality and their romantic ideals that so many housewives are troubled with nervousness, according to Dr. Abraham Myerson, a distinguished Boston physician, who has been making an exhaustive study of the subject. While these are the three main factors in the production of nervousness in the housewife, he finds they weave and interweave in such a complex way that they produce a wide variety of results.

"From the very start woman is trained to vanity," says Dr. Myerson in his recent book, "The Nervous Housewife." "Every mother loves to doll up her girl baby, and the child is admired for her dress and appearance. Now it is an essential quality of the normal human being that he accepts as an ideal the quality most admired. To the young child, the girl, the young woman, the important thing is Looks, Looks, Looks! The first question asked about a woman is 'Is she pretty?' The pretty girls, the ones most courted, the ones surest on the whole to get married and to become housewives are usually spoiled by indulgence, petting, admiration, and this for a quality not at all related to strong character, and therefore vanity of a trivial kind results.

"Moreover, woman is trained to emotionality. It may be that she is by nature more emotional than man, but again this can only be known when she has been trained to repress emotional response, as a man is trained. If a boy cries or shows fear he is scolded, and training of one kind or another is instituted to bring about moral and mental hardihood. But if a girl cries she is consoled by some means and taught that tears are potent weapons, a fact she uses with extraordinary effect later on, especially in dealing with men. If she shows fear she is protected, sheltered and given a sort of indulged inferiority.

"The romantic ideal is constantly held before her in the private counsel of her mother, in the books she reads, in the plays she witnesses, in all the allurements of art. She is to await the lover, the hero; he will take her off with him to dwell in love and happiness forever. All stories, or most of them, end before the heroine develops the neurosis of the housewife. In fact, literature is the worst possible preparation for married life, except, perhaps, the courtship. This latter emphasizes a distorted chivalry that makes of woman a pretty thing on a pedestal, out of touch with reality; it is an exciting entrance into what in the majority of cases is a rather monotonous existence.

"All these things—vanity, emotionality, romanticism, courtship—are poor training for the home. They hinder even the strongest woman, they are fetters for the more delicate."

Household Helps

Instead of Rye Flour.

A NEW ENGLAND cook recommends using stale doughnut or cake crumbs, soaked in milk, in place of rye flour in brown bread.

Frosting That Won't Crack.

TO make White Mountain frosting that will cut without cracking add 2 drops of glycerine just before beating for the last time.

Plain Doughnuts.

IN frying plain doughnuts don't have the lard as hot as for the sweetened kind, and let each cake brown on one side before turning on the other.

For Unexpected Guests.

THE prudent housewife always keeps a little pie crust or a couple of pie shells made up ahead for use in the emergency created by unexpected guests.

Cocoanut Pie.

INSTEAD of browning the meringue of a cocoanut pie—which makes the cocoanut hard and unpleasant to taste—beat the whites of 2 eggs stiff, add 2 tablespoons of sugar and 2 tablespoons of shredded cocoanut and pile upon the pie just before serving.

Cranberry Recipes

By Mary Lee Swann,

The Well-Known Writer and Lecturer on Cooking.

Mock Cherry Pie.

CHOP ½ cup seeded raisins with 1 cup choice cranberries. Add 1 cup sugar and 2 tablespoons sifted flour mixed with ½ cup cold water. Bake with 2 crusts.

Cranberry Pie.

BEAT 2 eggs, add 1 cup sugar, 1 cup cranberries, a few drops lemon juice and a pinch of salt. Pour into a plain pastry crust and cover with strips of plain or rich pastry and bake in a rather quick oven.

Cranberry Pudding.

MIX 3 tablespoons cornstarch with ½ cup sugar and ¼ cup cold milk. Stir into 1¾ cups scalded milk. Add ½ cup cranberries and ¼ cup grated cocoanut and stir constantly until thick and creamy. Turn into molds and chill.

Candied Cranberries.

BOIL 1¾ cups sugar with ⅔ cup water for 5 minutes. Add 2 cups choice berries which have been washed and dried. Let stand several hours. Then cook slowly until clear, drain, place on a large sugared platter, sprinkle with sugar and dry in a slow oven.

Cranberry Catsup.

COOK 5 pounds cranberries with 2 cups vinegar until the berries burst. Press through a sieve. Add 2½ pounds light-brown sugar, 2½ tablespoons cinnamon, ½ tablespoon ground cloves, ½ teaspoon paprika and 2 teaspoons salt. Cook slowly until thick, stirring frequently. Store in sterilized bottles or jars.

Cranberry and Cocoanut Sauce.

COOK 1 quart cranberries, 1 cup grated cocoanut, 3 cups water and ½ cup sugar cane syrup until tender.

Cranberry Jelly.

PICK over and wash 1 quart berries and add 1 cup water. Cook rapidly until the berries burst. Press through sieve or strain. Add 2 cups granulated sugar and stir until the sugar dissolves. Turn into molds to cool.

Cranberry Gelatine.

SOAK 2½ tablespoons gelatine in ¼ cup cold water for 20 minutes. Add ½ cup boiling water, 1½ cups cranberry juice, ¾ cup sugar and a few drops lemon juice. Strain into a cold mold and serve with whipped cream.

Cranberry Pudding Sauce.

MIX 2 tablespoons flour with ½ cup cold water. Add to 1 cup cranberry juice and ½ cup sugar and bring to a boil. Cook about 5 minutes, stirring constantly. Add 1½ tablespoons lemon juice and serve hot with baked or steamed puddings.

Secrets of Beauty

PLEASE tell me of a face bleach that is not just a liquid powder.—M.

Bathe your face daily with this lotion, which should be shaken thoroughly when being mixed and also every time it is used:

Glycerine	1 ounce
Rosewater	3 ounces
Lemon juice	10 drops
Carbolic acid	10 drops

PLEASE advise if there is any way of reducing my legs, especially around the ankles.—X. Y. Z.

Hereditary factors play a large part in a case like yours. To reduce the legs and ankles without dieting I would advise your taking up one or two of the more strenuous out-of-door sports rather than daily exercises in your own room. Walk, run, swim and dance whenever you can. Brisk walking is really one of the simplest and yet most effective of these exercises.

I HAVE been using a certain salve to remove pimples and it has caused a growth of "down" on my face. What should I do about it?—M. A. J.

It may be that you have a predisposition to superfluous hair, anyway, and in such a case, if the salve happens to contain vaseline or cocoa butter, this tendency may be increased. For this reason I would not use anything to eradicate those pimples except liquid green soap and warm water. Give the skin a thorough scrubbing at night with this and in the morning apply a little cold cream to allay the irritation.

Embassy 'At Homes' Are Still Kept Up In London

Receptions Made Popular By Mr. Davis Are Continued By Charge d'Affaires Until Colonel Harvey Takes Up His Duties As Envoy—

London, March 26.—J. Butler Wright, Charge d'Affaires of the American Embassy, and Mrs. Wright are carrying on the Thursday "at homes" which Mr. Davis made so popular with London society, and will continue to do so until Col. Harvey assumes his duties as American Ambassador at the Court of St. James's.

These receptions, which are purely informal, are held in the pretty chintz drawing rooms of the Wright's home. At the one this week there were present Thomas H. Birch, American Minister to Portugal, and Mrs. Birch, Mme. de Grevenkop-Castenskiold, the wife of the Danish Minister; Mme. M. Gabrilovitch, the wife of the Serbian (Jugo-Slovak) Minister; Countess de Courson and Mme. de Blanpre of the French Embassy; Lady Swaything, and several other members of the Diplomatic Corps. There was some brilliant piano playing by Mrs. Jackson, wife of Commander Jackson, U. S. N.

Shortly before leaving England American Ambassador and Mrs. Davis were entertained at a farewell dinner by Viscount and Viscountess Astor at No. 4 St. James's Square Among the other guests were Earl and Countess Reading, Earl and Countess Beatty, Viscount and Viscountess Burnham, Lord Robert Cecil, Lady Edmund Talbot, Mr. and Mrs. Austen Chamberlain, Sir James Barrie and the Hon. Mrs. Alfred Lyttelton. The tables were decorated with tulips, daffodils and other early spring flowers sent up from Cliveden. The dinner was followed by a reception, which was attended by about 300 guests.

BRILLIANT COMPANY

The reception after Earl and Countess Curzon of Kedleston's dinner on March 6 was the most brilliant gathering seen in London since the war. Many of the most beautiful women and the most famous men in Europe were there. Lady Curzon of Kedleston (Miss Hinds of Washington) looked very handsome in a black gown, with diamonds and a high diamond and pearl tiara, and she carried a small bunch of mauve orchids.

The Duke of York remained for some time after dinner talking with Lord Curzon. Marshal Foch had a long conversation with the Earl of Reading, who came with Lady Reading. Lady Millicent Hawes, over from Paris for a few days, wore deep blue with lovely pearls, and Lady D'Albernon was much admired in pale orange, with silver trimmings and pearls. Mr. Lloyd George, M. Briand and the Duke and Duchess of Abercorn were in a group together, and Lord Birkenhead, looking quite restored to health, brought his daughter, the Hon. Eleanor Smith. The American, Italian, Spanish and Japanese Ambassadors were also present.

One of the prettiest debutantes of the year is Miss Pamela Coventry, the elder daughter of the Hon. Charles John Coventry, the second son of the Earl of Coventry. Her mother before marriage was Miss Lily Whitehouse, the daughter of William Fitzhugh Whitehouse of Newport, R. I.

Gen. and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt were reported to have taken Viscountess Ridley's house on Carlton Terrace, but their plans apparently have fallen through.

Grace Lady Newborough (Miss Grace Carr of Kentucky) gave a dinner party recently at No. 39 Park Lane for the Italian Ambassador. Lady Newborough has let her house to Mrs. George Rose, an American, until July, and has gone to Paris.

There has been a report lately that Lord Astor contemplates retiring from the Parliamentary Secretaryship of the Ministry of Health on account of his own health.

The Speaker and Mrs. Lowther are busy arranging their new home in Great Cumberland Place, where they acquired a house some time ago. Mr. Lowther will resign next month, after having been Speaker of the House of Commons for sixteen years.

Devonshire House, Piccadilly, with its vast gardens, is, hanging heavy on the hands of the syndicate that paid the Duke of Devonshire $10,000,000 for it last year. The latest development is the putting up of great boards on the frontage offering it for sale either as a whole or in three sections. The syndicate expected frantic competition among the American hotel kings for the suite, but, although it was looked over by some notable hotel men, they were frightened off by the staggering building prices and the enormous and rising rates and taxes. Further up Piccadilly there stands a warning to would-be hotel builders in gaunt, naked girders, the forbidding skeleton of a big hotel begun three years ago, but never proceeded with.

AMERICAN ART SHOW

Many well-known Americans are on the Committee of the Exhibition of Contemporary American Art at the Grafton Galleries. Among them are Princess Hatzfeldt (Miss Clara Huntington of New York) Countess Howe (Miss Florence Davis of New York), the Countess of Sandwich (Miss Alberta Sturges of New York), Countess Beatty (Miss Ethel Field of Chicago), the Countess of Suffolk (Miss Marguerite Leiter of Chicago), Adele Countess of Essex (Miss Adele Beach Grant of New York), Viscountess Astor, Lady Ribblesdale (Mrs. John Astor), Lady Decies (Miss Vivien Gould of New York), Lady Forbes-Robertson (Miss Gertrude Elliott of New York) and Miss Mary Anderson.

The exhibition is the most important collection of American paintings ever seen in London, and Francis Howard is Chairman of the committee. Some 150 works brought from New York in the Adriatic were carried to London by motor cars. About fifty other pictures were sent from Paris.

AMERICAN RUSH EXPECTED

The London newspapers have started their annual story about the anticipated "record rush of Americans," and they are assured that hotel accommodations will be easier to find this summer than last—when, by the way, the record rush petered out into a very thin trickle. The accommodation may be all right, but hotel prices need some revising.

Americans do not understand why they should be expected to pay for rooms in London double the price for equally good or better accommodation in Paris. The London cooking certainly is much inferior and three or four times as expensive. The taxis are better, but 70 percent dearer than in Paris, and on the whole war prices still obtain to a far greater extent here than in the French capital without the same excuse.

LONDON PRAYERS IMPRESSED FOCH

One Of Things That Moved Him Most Was Message From Methodists

Paris, March 26.—Two new stories of Marshal Foch illumine a side of his character which adds to his influence and charm.

At a crisis in the war Clemenceau went to see him at the front. When the Premier arrived he was told by an officer at Headquarters that the Marshal was at mass, "but," he added, "if it is a matter of special importance I will call him out."

"No, no," was the quick response, "leave him alone. It has carried him through very well so far."

In March, 1918—such a month as France and Britain may well hope never to see again—a Methodist Council in London adopted a resolution to send a telegram to Marshal Foch with the Words:

"We are praying for you."

The telegram was sent but no reply was received. After the armistice, Foch, in conversation with an English statesman, confided to him that one of the things which had moved him most in the war was the receipt of an extraordinary telegram stating that the Methodists of England were praying for him.

CONVOY ATTACKED

(Reuter's Service)

Simla, May 12.—Frontier fighting which occurred at Piazharaghza on April 23, was of the fiercest character. It followed an attack on a British convoy by three hundred Mahsuds, in which the troops displayed the greatest bravery. All five of the British officers with the convoy were wounded and one of them has since died. One officer was brought in under heavy fire by a sepoy who has been awarded the Victoria Cross.

The convoy lost three hundred camels.

TIENTSIN-PUKOW LINE.

Notification No. 311.

(064/12)

The public is hereby notified that as pleague in Ta Chen Hsien, Hien Hsien and Tsing Hsien has disappeared, suggestion has been received from the Peiyang Sanitary Department for the resumption of passenger traffic on this line. It is now arranged to resume booking of passenger tickets at stations in Chihli province i.e. between Yangliutsing and Sangyuan from 9th instant. But as Potouchen, Tsangchow and Tsinghsien are close to the plague affected area, third class passengers from these three stations are still subject to examination by medical officers provided by the Peiyang Sanitary Department for a further week.

Exchange Quotations

Asia Banking Corporation

May 13, 1921.

Spot bar silver was unchanged and forward up ¼d. in London yesterday.

The New York price advanced to 60 7/8 cents and the London-New York cross rate to 400.

The official rates here today were unchanged from yesterday with the exception of the Yen rate which was dropped to 74. While at the opening the market was inclined to be steady the general tone throughout the day was weak.

Early in the morning a small business was done in Sterling at 3/4¼ and in Gold dollars at 67. However, a heavy demand set in at these quotations and rates eased off until at the close of the day there were no sellers of Sterling at better than 3/3½ and of Gold dollars at 66¼.

The demand for Francs and Marks which was the feature of yesterday's market continued today, business being done at about yesterday's rates.

India bought a small amount of silver in London yesterday for forward delivery but it would appear as if India as a substantial buyer is now definitely out of the market. This makes the general silver outlook weak and no improvement in rates can be expected for the time being.

Copenhagen To Be New Trade Center

British Business Men To Seek Markets For Their Goods In Baltic Provinces

London, March 5.—Important plans have been drawn up by a delegation of British business men, including Sir Charles Sykes and Sir William Petersen, who have been investigating the possibilitier of the free harbor of Copenhagen as a center for a scheme of trade by barter in the Baltic Provinces and other countries.

As a result of their visit to Denmark they look forward to establishing a system which will reopen trade outlets and so relieve the want of Eastern Europe and unemployment at home.

Without this, they declare, permanent peace can never be assured, "for peace will not come by political channels alone, but primarily by trade."

Members of the delegation state that the problem of unemployment is a serious and growing one in Scandinavia itself, and trade is becoming stagnant, owing to lack of confidence and the inability of Europe to purchase goods.

TRADE CHANNELS BROKEN

While the nations of Western Europe are comparatively prosperous and goods are piling up in stock, the bordering States of Russia and many parts of Central Europe are in rags and without the bare necessities of life. The normal channels of trade and exchange of goods have broken down. Some of the countries, however have surplus crops, and all have something which they could not utilise economically themselves. It is these goods which should be exchanged.

No barter scheme is possible without a large scale organisation, the security which a center such as the free port of Copenhagen would give, and the reorganisation of the transport, fuel and credit facilities of Europe.

As a result of the proposals which have been agreed upon at Copenhagen important negotiations are now taking place in London.

On the subject of the trade agreement with Russia, Sir Charles Sykes stated that that question had been carefully gone into, and in his view, trade agreement or no trade agreement, no substantial trade was possible from that direction for a long time.

RUSSIA ECONOMICALLY DEAD

"A certain amount of trade is taking place today," he added, "but Russia has practically nothing to offer in exchange for goods, for she has been rendered economically dead by her system of government. Bolshevik policy abroad is a world revolution, and of the $75,000,000 Bolshevik gold which has been sold abroad not a third has been used for the purchase of supplies, and those almost entirely for the equipment of the Red Army necessary to maintain the Communist power. The bulk of this expenditure has been for khaki cloth, and certain contracts have been discussed for transport material.

"The Soviet clearing house in Copenhagen, which was established by M. Krassin jointly with business men for the purpose of utilising the Bolshevik gold as a credit for trade, has broken down, owing mainly to the fact that the bulk of the gold has been utilised for propaganda purposes and to the lack of commodities in Russia which can be exported. We cannot look for trade in that direction, and must concentrate on the rest of the Baltic Province and Eastern Europe, where, however bad conditions may be, they are infinitely more hopeful than in Russia.'

The delegation further expressed the view that the system of trading by barter must be put into operation without delay if it is to be of any practical service.

Cotton

In their cotton market report of today Messrs. J. Spunt and Company state:

China Cotton.—There is nothing fresh to add to our last week's circular, except that a fair amount of business transpired during the week under review, most of which, however, being of a speculative nature, Mills generally continuing reticent in the expectation of taking advantage of any decline that may evolve. Prices, however, continue firm, being strengthened in its position by the gradual rise in Mid-Americans and the firm Indian markets, coupled with the decline in silver exchange and the healthy Yarn Situation.

Planting for the New Season Crop is now well under way and it is expected that the acreage this coming season will be considerably larger than that of the previous year, inasmuch as the farmers' toil has been amply compensated for by the cultivation of this important fiber during the season now fast expiring.

The prospects at this stage for the profitable disposal of the outturn of the new season crop, however large it may materialise, are not gloomy, provided always that the situation in this country continues to be peaceful and having in view also the better economic conditions that are so eagerly looked forward to as a result of the more stabilised political situation in the Central areas of Europe. Ton of the market, firm.

Jute Fabrics

Mr. J. A. Fredericks writes as follows in the jute fabrics circular dated May 11:

Business was very restricted during the fortnight under review and though rates have been fairly lower than when writing last very little business has resulted owing to lack of demand. Prices continue nominal.

Barns Music As Fast As He Writes It

Paris, March 26.—Henri Du Pare, a widely known French composer, has just been decorated by the French Government, at the age of seventy-three, with the Cross of the Legion of Honor. For the last twenty-seven years he has written steadily, but he has systematically burned every composition as soon as written.

TESTIMONY EXTRAORDINARY

REGARDING THE REMARKABLE EFFECTS OF

ALKIA SALTRATES AND REUDEL BATH SALTRATES

THE BEST OF ALL SALINES, for Liver, Kidney, or Rheumatic Disorders, Etc., Etc.,

THE BATH PREPARATION PAR EXCELLENCE. Cures Corns, and all Foot Troubles permanently, stops Rheumatic or other aches and pains within ten minutes.

The results of using these preparations are so remarkably satisfactory that many hundreds of prominent men and women have very kindly written us in grateful acknowledgement of the wonderful benefits derived. We regret that lack of space prevents our reprinting here all the extremely high tributes which these users have paid to our products. The following are only a few of the well-known people who have thus written us. All names are given by special permission, and the original letters are open to examination at our office, SALTRATES LIMITED, 214, Great Portland Street, London, W. 1.

What is Alkia Saltrates? Dissolved in plain water it gives you an exact reproduction of the essential medicinal constituents found in famous Spa waters. The dose.—Less than half of what you have been accustomed to take of ordinary salines. The taste is pleasant; children cry for it. It makes a sparkling effervescent draught. The effects. Stimulates the liver, flushes the kidneys, purifies the blood, corrects hyperacidity and other stomach disorders and eliminates all uric acid or any other impurities from the entire system. Best of all anti-rheumatic agents. Guaranteed free from any dangerous or other bad after-effects.

What is Reudel Bath Saltrates? Dissolve this in plain hot water and you will have an exact reproduction of the highly medicated and oxygenated curative bathing waters found at celebrated Continental and other springs and spas. The effects.—Softens and brings corns right out, root and all, so there is nothing left to sprout a new corn again, as when you merely cut the top off or burn it off with caustic liquids or plasters. A Saltrated Bath will stop any rheumatic or other aches and pains in muscles or joints within ten minutes. Also its strongly antiseptic and healing qualities will cure bad skin affections quickly and permanently. Only a handful of the concentrated compound is required for a full bath, or a tablespoonful for a strong foot bath.

The above preparations can be obtained from all Chemists and Bazaars. SALTRATES LTD., 214, Great Portland Street, London, W. 1. England.

The Upper Silesian Tangle

THE next European menace to be attacked and disposed of by the League of Nations will be the one created in Upper Silesia by the adventure of the Polish commander, Korfanty. This leader of the insurgents has ordered cessation of fighting, according to yesterday's cable, but doubt is expressed as to his ability to stop it. Meanwhile the Germans are increasing their forces "and a sanguinary collision between the Germans and the Poles is reported."

The dispute grows out of the plebiscite of last March. As a result of it, the Poles claim the rich coal and iron district around Tarnowitz. The total vote in Upper Silesia was 716,000 for the Germans and 471,000 for the Poles, but in the district named the latter carried 462 communes to Germany's 92.

A recent symposium in The Literary Digest on this problem, points out that "a system of popular consultation is extremely perilous, because instead of settling matters, it creates divisions and new quarrels. Many French journals, it says, reach the view, as a result of the new situation, that Wilson's self-determination plan must be scrapped.

Now, say some Paris correspondents, Upper Silesia "can easily become another Ireland or an Alsace-Lorraine." The entire French press demand that it be divided according to the vote by communes, which gives to Poland the mining and industrial centers, while the German Government and press assert vociferously that Upper Silesia constitutes "an indissoluble national, geographical, and industrial unit," because, taken as a whole, its vote showed a majority for union with Germany.

The semiofficial Paris Temps, in common with other Paris newspapers, insists that the Treaty of Versailles be carried out, and is furious at Germany for expecting that Upper Silesia should be given en bloc to her. "The Allies will not shut up Polish workers in a German reservoir," declares the Temps. Various observers call attention to the fact that the purpose of the plebiscite was merely to guide the Allies in "dividing the territory and disposing of it as they see fit," and to this effect they cite important parts of the Versailles Treaty as follows:

"In the portion of Upper Silesia. . . . the inhabitants will be called upon to indicate by a vote whether they wish to be attached to Germany or Poland.

"The Polish and German governments hereby respectively bind themselves to conduct no prosecutions on any part of their territory and to take no exceptional proceedings for any political action performed in Upper Silesia up to the settlement of the final status of the country.

"The plebiscite area shall immediately be placed under the authority of an international commission (France, the British Empire, and Italy). It shall be occupied by troops belonging to the Allied Powers. . . . . .

"The commission shall have full power to settle all questions arising from the execution of the present clauses. It shall be assisted by technical advisers chosen by it from among the local population.

"The result of the vote will be determined by communes, according to the majority of votes in each commune.

"On the conclusion of the voting the number of votes cast in each commune will be communicated by the commission to the principal Allied Powers, with a full report as to the taking of the vote and a recommendation as to the line which ought to be adopted as the frontier of Germany in Upper Silesia. In this recommendation regard will be paid to the wishes of the inhabitants as shown by the vote, and to the geographical and economic conditions of the locality.

"As soon as the frontier has been fixed by the principal Allied Powers, the German authorities will be notified by the international commission that they are free to take over the administration of the territory which it is recognised should be German. The said authorities must proceed to do so within one month of such notification and in the manner prescribed by the commission.

"Within the same period and in the same manner prescribed by the commission, the Polish Government must proceed to take over the administration of the territory which it is recognised should be Polish.

"When the administration of the territory has been provided for by the German and Polish authorities respectively, the powers of the commission will terminate."

Mr. Ignace Jan Paderewski, formerly Premier of Poland, even declares, in a press interview given in Chicago, that the Allied authorities "have the power to ignore the vote if they so desire." But Germany's occupation from now on, he says will be to influence "not only the Allied representatives in Paris but the people in the several countries which they represent."

According to the Foreign Office at Warsaw, "the Interallied Mission will present to the Allied Supreme Council the plan for the division of Upper Silesia on the basis of the commune vote, taking into consideration the geographical and economical situation of each locality."

London dispatches advise us that in the judgment of official circles another peace conference may have to be staged to consider fully the fate of Upper Silesia, and we are told:

"Although Germany retains much of the disputed territory as the result of the vote, the Poles have pluralities in such rich districts as the coal-basin of Rybnik. There is the possibility that in the final determination of the boundaries there may be readjustments which will benefit the Germans in this district, while the Poles obtain concessions elsewhere. The fate of the country still rests with the Allied Powers, and there will be prolonged discussion before it is finally settled."

A special correspondent of the Journal de Geneve writes from Beuthen that "in order to understand the fanatical efforts made by the Germans to keep their hold on Upper Silesia, we must remember that they have always considered it as a country to be exploited, as a veritable economic fief." In the broad day of the twentieth century Germany has kept this territory under a regime "almost like that of the feudal ages with the majority of serfs working for a minority of seigneurs," that is to say, "Polish workers and peasants were in the employ of German proprietors and a hundred or so big capitalists who spent most of their time in Berlin and had only one thought of Upper Silesia, namely, that it should pay the highest possible dividends." An Upper Silesian correspondent of the Manchester Guardian, in an article entiled "The Weakness of the Polish Claim," admits that "Prussian tyranny" is responsible for the Polish movement in Upper Silesia, which is not traditional but of recent growth.

WORSE THAN FLIES!

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS

Sir.—Year by year, as the hot weather approaches, Dr. Stanley issues stern warnings to the residents of this salubrious city regarding "Mosquitoes, Their Cause and Cure" and "Swat That Fly!"

Much as we appreciate the good doctor's solicitude for our health, we would like to see him take steps to remedy the disgusting state of affairs in our streets every morning between 6 and 9 o'clock, which constitutes as great a menace to public health as do flies and mosquitoes.

Between the hours mentioned, when practically every good policeman and hard-working Health Department official is sleeping the sleep of the just, night-soil coolies may be seen emptying and washing their receptacles in the gutters in every street. This is contrary to every principle of sound sanitation, as Dr. Stanley is no doubt aware, and the practice calls for instant remedy. By the time Shanghai is awake and proceeds to its offices, there is nothing to be seen—the gutters are dry, but the bacilli are there by the billion.

Please, Dr. Stanley, get up early one morning, don a respirator, and take a walk along Szechuen, Kiangse and other Roads. Yours etc.,

PECKSNIFF JNR.

Shanghai, 13th May, 1921.

Add One Question—

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

Mr. Patterson, the cash register manufacturer, prints this to be placed before his many thousands of employes:

Can You Truthfully Repeat These Words?

I am thorough
I am thoughtful
I am courteous
I am cheerful
I am logical
I am economical
I am happy

This will be read by millions of newspaper readers. What percentage will think about these questions. Mere reading is nothing. Thinking is all. Thinking is to reading as digestion is to eating.

Which is the most important of Mr. Patterson's seven questions? And what question would you add to the seven? Do not immediately read on to get the answer of an editor, but give your own answer before you read further.

To be economical is important, for economy means independence, and the absence of independence means slavery.

To be "logical" is important. But to say "I am logical" may mean that you lack logic. The logic of today is the folly of tomorrow, and the absolutely settled fact of today is the discarded superstition of tomorrow.

To be cheerful is important, for cheerfulness expands the minds, tempers the nerves, steadies them. Cheerfulness, however, is a thing to be enjoyed, not commanded, it is the by-product of good work.

To be courteous is highly important, for politeness is to business what oil is to the automobile. You may have the best machine in the world, but if you don't oil it, there will soon be no machine.

You may have any amount of business ability, and unless you happen to be at the top dominating, you won't do much, if you lack the oil of courtesy.

To be thorough is important. No man ever could say that he ever was entirely thorough, for to be thorough means to take out of yourself everything that is within yourself, no man can be sure that he has done that.

The most important of Mr. Patterson's lines is "I am thoughtful." If a man can say that, knowing what it means, he is to be congratulated.

Thinking is everything. It is the preliminary real work, the rest follows. The real factory in which you live and work is your brain. And thinking is the work done in that brain.

The difference between men and animals is the difference of thinking.

The difference between the man who takes orders and the man who gives them is the difference of thinking. The difference between him that rules and him that humbly obeys is a difference of thinking.

If you think, you acquire power and increase it—assuming that there is concentration in the thinking.

And if you do not think, then you are drifting on the stream.

What would you add to Mr. Patterson's seven lines? You would certainly add this:

I am discontented.

You might leave out the words "I am happy" and substitute "I am discontented" in place of it.

It really doesn't matter much whether you are happy or not while you are climbing toward something worth while. But it matters most vitally whether or not you are discontented.

Discontent is the mainspring of progress. Discontent is the feeling that makes us criticise and goad ourselves, and drive ourselves into better work.

Discontent replaced rough flints with sharpened flints. It made the Bronze Age to succeed the Stone Age, and it made the age of steel and iron follow the Bronze Age.

Discontent took men up in the air in flying machines, and under the sea in submarines, brought Columbus across the ocean.

Think and be discontented, wisely, discontented with yourself, and you will go as far as it is within you to go.

SAFETY FIRST

Those railless cars—or as they have sometimes been named, pathfinders—have given me food for thought of late. It's all very well Mr. McColl placarding the place with the "Safety First" sign, but the trouble is with those railless things. If you are not really on them, there's no safety either first or last. The beastly things go wandering about from pavement to pavement seeking the lives of those who would dare venture into the road.

Only a day or so ago a fellow boarded the thoughtless conveyance, and was just handing out 6 of the best new coinage cents, when a strange thing happened. The tram, like a thing possessed, suddenly made for the pavement, and the conductor disappeared, with a crash, through the plate glass window of a shop displaying boots, boots, boots and more boots.

The fellow, under notice, followed him; not from mere idle curiosity but in obedience to a natural law—the law of dynamics, by which swift-moving bodies, when suddenly arrested, violently throw off unattached objects.

* * *

Yes, thank you, the poor fellow is doing very nicely, and nurse says he will be about again in the sweet bye and bye. Now what all this is leading to is simply this: Instead of those gory looking pictures, that depict Chinamen shedding enough of life's blood to float a present day battleship, the Tramway Company should have solemn warnings written in sombre verse. Just think of the interest that would thus be engendered! Take for example a verse placarded on the Bund—Rifle Range Route:

A Resident of Hongkew Park
Stepped off the pavement in the dark.
He asked for, and he got, the worst,
And never thought of "Safety First."
The tram was battered, pavement riven.
The Hongkew Parker went to —heaven

* * *

Now, you will agree that a tale of woe so pithily put, ought to keep people from popping off the pavement when darkness descends upon the denizens of Dixwell Road.

But again, what could be more effective during the tiffin intervals than a crowd of sandwich men parading the Maloo with something of this kind:

Statistics tell, that people fell
From off the trams to Bubbling Well.
Pedestrians the p'liceman find dead
Are gathered from the absent-minded:
Be cautious therefore; always wary,
And thus avoid the mortuary.

* * *

I present the following to Mr. McColl to use, or not to use—but that's beside the question.

When crossing Szechuen Road you'll find
It best to look before, behind,
And right and left, and up and down;
Such are the perils of this town.
With ricshaws you may take a chance,
With Mafoos, like their nags, you prance,
But miss them, and the tram—I bet you
The Motor hog is sure to get you.

* * *

One notices that at last the walker has a Champion who would curb the speed of the motor, and the rain of the brokers' gee-gee. Is it on record that for furious driving

The driver got an awful shock,
When standing in the Mixed Court dock,
Assessor Schuhl said you've "Three weeks,
No fine." The Chauffeur died with shrieks.

Discourses Of A Scientist

BY EDGAR LUCIEN LARKIN,
Director of Lowe Observatory.

All who ever look toward the sky to behold its magnificence may, in the months of May and June, 1921, witness the giant planets Jupiter and Saturn apparently close together in the east as soon as daylight has vanished. Here are a few positions of both worlds.

Right ascension of any celestial body is its distance eastward from the first point of the zodiacal sign Aries, the Ram. It is expressed in time as hours, minutes and seconds. It corresponds to longitude on the earth, with this difference: Right ascension is ever eastward, twenty-four hours around to Aries, while longitude is twelve hours east or twelve hours west of Greenwich or Washington.

The right ascension of Jupiter on January 1, 1921, was 11 hours 21 minutes 8.06 seconds. On January 3 right ascension was 11h. 21m. 11.53s.; but on the fourth it was 11h. 21m. 11.26s. This means that Jupiter appeared to stop going east and to move west 0.27s. from transit on January 5 to transit on January 4. Of course, Jupiter did not stop at all, the apparent motion westward being really due to the more rapid motion of the earth eastward. This illusory motion westward will continue to time of transit on May 5, when it will stop at 10h. 44m. 10.58s., but on May 6 right ascension will be 10h. 44m. 10.61s., a motion eastward again of only 0.03 seconds in one day. And good old Jupiter will keep on increasing its distance from the first of Aries until the end of 1921.

The right ascension of Saturn on January 1, 1921, was 11h. 44m. 16.69s.; but on the fourth it was 11h. 44m. 20.15s, and the next day its transit was 11h. 44m. 20.00s. Thus Saturn appeared to stop going east and to start west. These westerly motions are called retrograde. And the ringed planet will appear to move west until May 21, when right ascension seconds will be 21s., 18.68.; 22s, 19.00s. And will increase to 12h. 30m. 48.60s. on December 31, 1921.

To cause these illusory motions the earth must be between the sun and Jupiter and far-away Saturn. Thus on May 5 right ascension of the sun was 2h. 48m. 41.48s. The earth must be 12h, from the sun, or at 14h. 48m. 41.48s. Draw a line from the earth to Jupiter and it will be seen at once that the earth, moving on its orbit at the average speed of 18.4927 miles per second towards the east, must cause Jupiter to appear to start west. And the same for Saturn on January 5.

That is, if you draw the orbits to scale, the earth being 92,897,416 miles from the sun; Jupiter 483,000,000 and Saturn 887,000,000 miles. And the speed of Jupiter on its orbit is 8.106 miles per second, and that of Saturn 5.946 per second. No wonder that the automobile, our earth, overtakes the distant slower worlds, passes them and thus causes them to appear to go the other way.

Saturn will appear to stop her western course on May 21, and be seen moving eastward on her course on the next day at transit. Jupiter moves faster than far more remote Saturn and will finally overtake and pass it in direction as seen from the earth on September 14. Jupiter will be only 1 degree to the south. The diameter of the moon is half a degree. But then the right ascension of the two planets will be 11h. 52m.; and that of the sun 11h. 28m. That is, the two planets will be only 24m. east of the sun and immersed within its brilliant glow. They will be difficult to see without a telescope. So now is the rare time to see them in their majesty.

The earth passed through the plane of the rings of Saturn on February 22. The effect is that the edge of the ring was turned exactly toward the earth. I scarcely thought of being able to see it, but rain cleared the air around this summit of dust. I put on a high magnifying power, when lo! I saw the edge of an exceedingly thin thread of light on either side of the planet, and a dark spiderlike line across the mighty disk. I secured another clear view March 5, and was surprised to see the rings brighter than I ever saw the illumined side before, so soon after the passage of the earth through their plane.

When the earth was passing through the plane of Saturn's three rings, I saw four of its nine moons. One was in range with the thin edge of the outer ring. Since Jupiter and Saturn are just past opposition, from now until June the two great planets will be at their best.

Sphinx is a Greek name for a compound creature with lion's body and human head. In Egyptian the name was Hu.

The most celebrated example is the Great Sphinx of Ghizeh near Cairo, hewn out of solid granite, the recumbent body 146-ft. long and 56-ft. high, with a man's head 28½-ft. from chin to crown.

The face looks out due eastward from the Pyramid field over the desert and, it is conjectured, was sculptured at Ghizeh to guard the entrance of the Nile valley.

Garrett P. Serviss's Article

Some Interesting Facts About Panama Canal Furnished Inquiring Correspondent—How Composition Of Stars Is Ascertained

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS,
Eminent Astronomer and Authority on Subjects of Scientific Interest

"Will you kindly give me the following information: At the Canal the Pacific Ocean is from 10 to 30 feet higher than the Atlantic Ocean. As water seeks its own level, what prevents it from flowing around Cape Horn or through the Straits of Magellan and levelling itself with the Atlantic

If you will look at a good map of the western coast of South America from 10 degrees north latitude to Cape Horn, the explanation that you seek will stand plain before your eyes. The Bay of Panama is a "cul-de-sac" for the water driven toward the American coast by the equatorial counter-current of the Pacific Ocean.

The bay opens southward, and its eastern shore is continuous with the coast of Colombia and Ecuador, which bends gradually westward until it is several degrees farther west than Panama. Consequently, the Pacific current above spoken of slides into the Bay of Panama as easily as a hand into a glove, but to get out again the water has to contend with the entering current.

The result is a heaping-up, or a rise of level, in the bay, varying with the ratio of the amount of water arriving to that leaving. But always there appears to be sufficient surplus of water to keep the level of the bay above mean sea level, and above the level of the Atlantic water in the Caribbean Sea at the northern end of the canal.

SURFACE OF OCEAN VARIES

You see, it is simply a question of always having more than enough funds to meet expenses. Neptune's representative who governs the maritime province of Panama Bay is luckily placed, for his deposit in bank is never drawn down to zero. But there are places on the shores of the oceans where a continual deficit exists, and where the deputy holders of the trident can never get their account to show a favorable balance, to say nothing of having a constant surplus.

This indicates what a curious form the actual surface of the ocean would present if we could see it all in a single picture. It would show protuberances and depressions, not great of course, but yet calculated to surprise those who think that "sea-level" means an absolutely spheroidal surface. The seal-level of science is an assumed mean level of the oceans, and, like the mean time that regulates our clocks and watches, it only now and then, or here and there, agrees with the actual facts.

Other causes besides ocean currents, winds, and tides tend to produce local differences of sea level. Among the most interesting of these is the existence of subterranean masses of unusual density, which alter the direction of gravity, and huge uplands and mountain ranges not far from coasts, which, by their attraction, tend to increase the elevation of the water along those coasts.

The mighty mass of the Himalayas has been thought to have a notable effect of this kind, but corresponding deficiency of density under the Indian Ocean may counteract it. The means of measuring elevation with regard to sea level depends upon air pressure—the lower the elevation the higher the barometer, and vice versa.

COMPOSITION OF STARS

"I am sixteen years old and read your articles on astronomy and scientific subjects daily. I would like you to please answer my questions on 'What is the star? What it is made of? What kind of matter is it formed from, and all about it generally. Please answer this for me in 'plain English' and not in 'scientific words.' S. S. B. Brooklyn.'

Since you are interested in plain English, I must tell you that you should not use the word "star" with the article "the" unless you wish to refer to some particular star. Your question should have been "What is a star?" or "What are the stars?" It would require a book to tell you "all about the stars generally," but I can tell you here a few of the main facts about them.

A star is a body having a general resemblance in composition to our sun, which is only a star, near which we are situated because our earth is a planet revolving around this particular star that we call "the sun."

The other stars are from hundreds of thousands to millions of times farther from us than our star, the sun. Many of them are really much larger and brighter than the sun, but because of their immense distance they appear to us only like brilliant points of light. If the sun were as far away as are some of these great stars, it would be so faint on account of the distance that we could not see it. On the other hand, some of the stars are smaller than our sun.

HOW SUN IS STUDIED

Since the stars are bodies resembling the sun, we can tell, at least in a general way, what kind of matter they are made of, first by learning what the sun is made of. This astronomers have been enabled to do with the aid of the spectroscope, an instrument that reveals the nature of the substances that are shining in the sun and the stars by analyzing their light.

In this way it has been found out that both the sun and his distant relations, the stars, are composed of the same chemical elements that exist upon and in the earth, although these elements are not in the same condition there as on the earth. Because the sun and the stars are exceedingly hot, the same substances that exist upon the earth, some as solid bodies, some as liquids and some as gases, exist in the sun and the other stars, all in the form of glowing hot gases.

BRITISH VETERANS BALK RED MOB

After Ups And Downs Union Jack Floats In Triumph Over Town Hall

London, March 26.—The United States is not the only country in the world where the Union Jack goes up and down according to the temper of the crowd. Although there was no Irish faction in Edmonton this week the British flag over the town hall there fell two or three times before it finally waved triumphant from the flagpole.

The trouble started when the Edmonton District Council decided not to fly the Union Jack over the town hall on Empire Day. A procession of ex-service men marched to where the Council was sitting to demand that the flag be displayed, but found the chamber closed. While the procession was forming crowds of ex-service men and Socialists filled the galleries and entrance to the chamber, but the Council passed its resolution not to display the flag before the crowd gathered in sufficient numbers to halt the proceedings. Then when the Socialists sang the "Red Flag" the ex-service men answered with cheers for the Union Jack. One of the men who had fought in the war shouted:

"I never met such a lot of chicken hearted councillors!"

This was followed by a more vigorous singing of the "Red Flag." When an elderly man waved the Union Jack, it was snatched from his hand and torn and he was howled down.

About 15,000 persons were engaged in the cheering and hooting when one of the ex-service men went to the roof of the town hall, climbed the flagstaff and tied the flag there, the rope having been cut. A pitched battle seemed imminent when the lights were turned out. Thereupon the ex-service men formed a procession and marched through the streets singing "Old Soldiers Never Die." It was then that the red flag adherents dispersed, with the Union Jack still flying over the Town Hall.

The council refused to give a reason for not flying the nation's flag on Empire Day.

AMERICAN FILM SHOCKS ENGLISH

Paul Pry And Desert Island Scenes In 'Admirable Crichton' Censured

London, March 26.—The American film of Barrie's play "The Admirable Crichton," is being severely criticised in the press here for its alleged indelicacy.

Exception is taken especially to the opening scenes, in which the page boy spies into the ladies' bedrooms through the keyholes, "making wriggling motions" over what he sees therein.

The tattered condition of the wrecked women's evening dresses on the desert island is also scored and the supperior moral of one of the British-made films is urged in contrast.
